

ABSTRACT

Norhafizah.2020. Mobile Application Used By Students in Learning English at Vocational High School 1 Barabai. Thesis. English Education Department, Faculty of Tarbiyah and Teacher Training, Antasari State Islamic University. Advisors: (I) Puji Sri Rahayu, M.A. (II) Fajrianor, M.Pd.

Keywords: Perception, Autonomous Learning, Mobile Application

This study was conducted about the applications are used by students to individual learning at vocational high school 1 Barabai. And also want to know how the students' responses to the individual learning by using mobile application.

The researcher used qualitative data which is used descriptive technique. Researcher used observation and interview as technique of data collection. Some of students on ninth grade of TKJ at SMKN 1 Barabai as a respondent in this study. The result showed that Applications used in learning English independently used by students of class IX TKJ SMK 1 Barabai there are three kinds, namely Doulingo, English Speaking and Listening Application and Hello English. Students select applications according to their needs.

The students perceived that learning English with online courses to increase knowledge and knowledge. Make it easier to understand the lessons delivered teacher. Also improving English language skills.