

CHAPTER V

CLOSURE

The conclusion and suggestions for the teacher and other researchers for potential further study in this field are presented in this chapter. The research begins by concluding the discussion from the previous chapter. Furthermore, the researcher takes into account the findings, discussions, and conclusions to formulate suggestions for the analyze figurative language in Cocomelon Song.

A. Conclusion

Considering the discussion of the findings, the conclusion that can be drawn are:

1. The researcher found six various kinds of figurative language in Cocomelon songs, including simile, personification, apostrophe, synecdoche, symbol, and hyperbole.
2. The most dominant types of figurative language found in Cocomelon songs is personification.

B. Suggestions

1. English teachers must be able to make learning more interesting by applying the Cocomelon-Nursery Rhyme as learning material for children in learning language especially in learning figurative language.
2. For young learners can listen to Cocomelon's song which can provide motivation to add new vocabulary.
3. For the further researcher can explore more about figurative language in other song and media.