

CHAPTER V

CLOSURE

This chapter presents the conclusions and suggestions for this research. First, the researcher concludes based on the findings and discussions contained in the previous chapter, namely translation errors in student translation results and the methods used by students in translating a text. Furthermore, the researcher also includes suggestions for consideration in finding, discussion and conclusion.

A. Conclusion

The researcher make conclusions based on the results of the research on translation methods and errors in student translation results. First, the researcher can conclude that in this study on the student's translation results there are translation errors that are not realized by the students. There are 3 types of translation errors in student translation results, namely accuracy errors, smoothness errors and idiom errors. Then in this study the students translated texts using two translation methods, namely the word for word translation method and the literal translation method.

B. Suggestion

Based on the conclusions above, the researcher suggests:

1. Students

Students must try and apply other methods when translating to support their skills in translating. In addition, the researcher also suggests that students be more careful and pay attention to the results of their translation in order to minimize translation errors by checking and re-checking.

2. Other researcher

Related to the topic of this research, namely translation and more specifically on translation errors and translation methods, there are still many things that can be explored by other researcher. There are lots of other theories from experts about translation errors and translation methods, so it's still possible if you want to research the topic of translation.
