NICE CAFÉ

A: So speaking of places like Starbucks, what do you think really makes a good café or a good coffee shop?

B: Well, number one is it has to be the employees themselves. People who run a café who are generally amicable people, really just make me want to come back and to talk to them and also the setting of cafés. I have some of my favorite cafés that usually like to hang local artists so they're constantly kind of like not only getting involved with the community but also like helping them with their work and helping people in the community kind of see what other people in the community are into and doing every day. Also sometimes like cafes that have like music or shows is really, really cool to me. What do you think?

A: Actually, I agree with that quite a bit. I think the atmosphere is a very important part of it. And actually I have another question for you. When you go to a café, do you actually go there for the coffee or do you go there for something else and you happened to buy a coffee there?

B: Sometimes both. I am a bit of a coffee addict. So I definitely go for the caffeine boost but I do like to, you know, now and then I'll say "Oh, that café looks kind of cool." Like You know, look at what they have hanging inside or look at the music that's being played and, "Oh look, they have lots of board games". I'd like to sit down and you know, see who'd maybe want to play with me and then end up buying a cup of coffee.

A: Okay. I think for me so often it's that I want to sit down somewhere and read a book but I want to get out of my house. I want to get out and go somewhere where there's energy and people. And so I think the atmosphere plays a big role for me because I don't really go there to get a coffee as much as I go to do some work or read a book or study language or things like that.

B: That's so true, I could never study in a library because it's so quiet that I fall asleep but if I were to go to a coffee shop, there's the ability to kind of zone out because there's so much going on around you, people meeting to chat, you know the blending machine making a special café iced mocha but plenty of table space to where you can go and you know just kind of sprawl out with all of your different belongings and study or even get lost in a book.

A: Right. And I think when I'm reading I want a really comfortable cushy chair but I find that actually when I'm studying especially if I'm writing, I'd rather have maybe a wooden chair and a table that I can work with.

B: Also sometimes too like when I study, studying is really not that much fun so if you're in a café you always have the ability of possibly running into somebody who's going to distract you.

A: Exactly. Thank you for talking to me. Have a nice day!

B: Thank you! Have a good one!
