

Appendices

Chapter	Page	Translation
I	1	13. Hai manusia, Sesungguhnya Kami menciptakan kamu dari seorang laki-laki dan seorang perempuan dan menjadikan kamu berbangsa-bangsa dan bersuku-suku supaya kamu saling kenal-mengenal. Sesungguhnya orang yang paling mulia diantara kamu disisi Allah ialah orang yang paling taqwa diantara kamu. Sesungguhnya Allah Maha mengetahui lagi Maha Mengenal.

APPENDICES

PRICE ONE SHILLING.

BEETON'S CHRISTMAS ANNUAL

A STUDY IN SCARLET

By A. CONAN DOYLE

Containing also
Two Original
DRAWING ROOM PLAYS.

1.
FOOD FOR POWDER
By R. ANDRÉ

2.
THE FOUR LEAVED SHAMROCK
By C. J. HAMILTON.

With ENGRAVINGS
By D. H. FRISTON
MATT. STRETCH, AND
R. ANDRÉ.

WARD·LOCK·&·CO
LONDON·NEW·YORK
AND·MELBOURNE.

APPENDICES

i. Conventional Implicature Adverbs

a. Conventional Implicatures “ALMOST”

1. From the shores of the Mississippi to the western slopes of the Rocky Mountains they had struggled on with a constancy almost unparalleled in history. (p. 159, Chapter II, Part 2)
2. A horror which was almost superstitious came upon him at the sight of them. (p. 192 Chapter IV, Part 2)
3. Night was coming on rapidly, and it was almost dark before he at last found himself in a defile which was familiar to him. (p. 210 Chapter V, Part 2)
4. I had almost decided upon this, when he solved the problem for me. (p. 239, Chapter VI, Part 2)
5. That all united should fail to enlighten the competent enquirer in any case is almost inconceivable." (p. 34, Chapter 2, Part 1)
6. "This will do very well. It is almost a facsimile." (p. 85 Chapter 5, Part 1)
7. They were of a pearly grey colour, small, round, and almost transparent against the light(p. 123, Chapter 7, Part 1)

b. Conventional Implicatures “ALREADY”

1. On landing at Bombay, I learned that my corps had advanced through the passes, and was already deep in the enemy's country (p. 4, Chapter 1, Part 1)
2. Here, I rallied, and had already improved so far as to be able to walk about the wards(p. 5, Chapter 1, Part 1)
3. As he spoke, his nimble fingers were flying here, there, and everywhere, feeling, pressing, unbuttoning, examining, while his eyes wore the same far-away expression which I have already remarked upon. (p. 55, Chapter 3, Part 1)
4. I had already observed that he was as sensitive to flattery on the score of his art as any girl could be of her beauty. (p. 71, Chapter 4, Part 1)
5. His quiet self-confident manner convinced me that he had already formed a theory which explained all the facts, though what it was I could not for an instant conjecture. (p. 82, Chapter 5, Part 1)
6. After leaving the house he discovered his loss and hurried back, but found the police already in possession, owing to his own folly in leaving the candle burning. (p. 85 Chapter 5, Part 1)
7. it had already exceeded the usual term of canine existence (p. 124 Chapter 7, Part 1)
8. With this trophy over his shoulder, he hastened to retrace his steps, for the evening was already drawing in. (p. 209 Chapter V, Part 2)

9. For five days he toiled footsore and weary through the defiles which he had already traversed on horseback. (p. 214 Chapter V, Part 2)
10. As to what occurred there, we cannot do better than quote the old hunter's own account, as duly recorded in Dr Watson's Journal, to which we are already under such obligations. (p. 224 Chapter V, Part 2)
11. My plans were already formed. (p. 236, Chapter VI, Part 2)
12. "I have already explained to you that what is out of the common is usually a guide rather than a hindrance. (p. 252, Chapter VII, Part 2)
13. I naturally began by examining the roadway, and there, as I have already explained to you, I saw clearly the marks of a cab, which, I ascertained by inquiry, must have been there during the night. (p. 254, Chapter VII, Part 2)
14. I had already come to the conclusion, since there were no signs of a struggle, that the blood which covered the floor had burst from the murderer's nose in his excitement. (p. 257, Chapter VII, Part 2)
15. The answer was conclusive. It told me that Drebber had already applied for the protection of the law against an old rival in love, named Jefferson Hope, and that this same Hope was at present in Europe. (p. 258, Chapter VII, Part 2)
16. "I had already determined in my own mind that the man who had walked into the house with Drebber, was none other than the man who had driven the cab(p. 258, Chapter VII, Part 2)
17. Through it, as you know, I came into possession of the pills, the existence of which I had already surmised. (p. 260, Chapter VII, Part 2)
18. where a meal was already awaiting them. (p. 157, Chapter I, Part 2)

c. Conventional Implicatures "EVEN"

1. I even took a pencil and jotted them down. (p. 27, Chapter 2, Part 1)
2. Even across the street I could see a great blue anchor tattooed on the back of the fellow's hand (p. 43, Chapter 3, Part 1)
3. I can afford to laugh, because I know that I will be even with them in the long run." (p. 93 Chapter 5, Part 1)
4. I felt a creeping of the flesh, and a presentiment of coming horror, even before Sherlock Holmes answered. (p. 120 Chapter 7, Part 1)
5. and even then we felt no security until we had pinioned his feet as well as his hands(p. 134, Chapter 7, Part 1)
6. The travel-stained adventurers gazed after her in astonishment, and even the unemotional Indians, (p. 165, Chapter II, Part 2)
7. You ain't even a friend of ours." (p. 169, Chapter II, Part 2)
8. never even looking round, (p. 173, Chapter II, Part 2)
9. and that even in the heart of the wilderness they dared not whisper the doubts which oppressed them. (p. 176 Chapter III, Part 2)

10. And even to bask a little upon the veradah (p. 5, Chapter 1, Part 1)
11. Even as they passed, a great rock came thundering down with a hoarse rattle which woke the echoes in the silent gorges, and startled the weary horses into a gallop. (p. 205 Chapter V, Part 2)
12. Even then it was no easy matter to keep to the right track, for the moon had not yet risen, and the high cliffs on either side made the obscurity more profound(p. 210 Chapter V, Part 2)
13. Even in the darkness he could recognise the outline of the cliffs which bounded it. (p. 210 Chapter V, Part 2)
14. Again he shouted, even louder than before, and again no whisper came back from the friends whom he had left such a short time ago. (p. 211 Chapter V, Part 2)
15. He soon realised that even his iron constitution could not stand the incessant strain which he was putting upon it. (p. 221 Chapter V, Part 2)
16. Even the professional detectives, blasé as they were in every detail of crime, appeared to be keenly interested in the man's story. (p. 248, Chapter VI, Part 2)

d. Conventional Implicatures “ONLY”

1. "if we can only find the man to put them on(p. 132, Chapter 7, Part 1)
2. This cloud continued to increase in size until it became evident that it could only be raised by a great multitude of moving creatures. (p. 148, Chapter I, Part 2)
3. it can only be as believers in our own creed. (p. 156, Chapter I, Part 2)
4. There was one way and only one in which he offended the susceptibilities of his co-religionists (p. 162, Chapter II, Part 2)
5. thinking only of her task and how it was to be performed. (p. 165, Chapter II, Part 2)
6. At first this vague and terrible power was exercised only upon the recalcitrants who(p. 176 Chapter III, Part 2)
7. A sob and a squeeze of his hand was her only answer. (p. 182 Chapter III, Part 2)
8. Once on the road we are only two miles from the Ravine where the horses are waiting. (p. 198 Chapter IV, Part 2)
9. Only once did they meet anyone, and then they managed to slip into a field, and so avoid recognition. (p. 201 Chapter IV, Part 2)
10. and so rough that only practised riders could have traversed it at all. (p. 203 Chapter IV, Part 2)
11. When he finished we sat for some minutes in a stillness which was only broken by the scratching of Lestrade's pencil as he gave the finishing touches to his shorthand account. (p. 248, Chapter VI, Part 2)

12. "There is only one point on which I should like a little more information," Sherlock Holmes said at last (p. 249, Chapter VI, Part 2)
13. When I arrived there, I walked right into the arms of a police-officer who was coming out, and only managed to disarm his suspicions by pretending to be hopelessly drunk. (p. 246, Chapter VI, Part 2)
14. Like all other arts, the Science of Deduction and Analysis is one which can only be acquired by long and patient study nor is life long enough to allow any mortal to attain the highest possible perfection in it. (p. 33, Chapter 2, Part 1)
15. "Well, I have a trade of my own. I suppose I am the only one in the world. (p. 35, Chapter 2, Part 1)
16. Holmes sniffed sardonically. "Lecoq was a miserable bungler," he said, in an angry voice; "he had only one thing to recommend him, and that was his energy. (p. 39, Chapter 2, Part 1)
17. There was only one student in the room, who was bending over a distant table absorbed in his work. (p. 13, Chapter 1, Part 1)
18. It was dark in colour and flakey—such an ash as is only made by a Trichinopoly (p. 68, Chapter 4, Part 1)
19. Why, that is true, sir," he said; "though how you come to know it, Heaven only knows. (p. 75, Chapter 4, Part 1)
20. and so rough that only practised riders could have traversed it at all. (p. 203 Chapter IV, Part 2)
21. So steep were the rocky banks on either side of them, that the larch and the pine seemed to be suspended over their heads, and to need only a gust of wind to come hurtling down upon them. (p. 205 Chapter V, Part 2)
22. It was only too clear that some sudden and terrible disaster had occurred during his absence—a disaster which had embraced them all, and yet had left no traces behind it. (p. 211 Chapter V, Part 2)
23. On another occasion, as Drebber passed under a cliff a great boulder crashed down on him, and he only escaped a terrible death by throwing himself upon his face. (p. 220 Chapter V, Part 2)
24. The prediction of the Mormon was only too well fulfilled. (p. 218 Chapter V, Part 2)
25. When at last he was liberated, it was only to find that Drebber's house was deserted, and that he and his secretary had departed for Europe. (p. 223 Chapter V, Part 2)
26. It was only early in the morning or late at night that I could earn anything, so that I began to get behind hand with my employer. (p. 233, Chapter VI, Part 2)
27. My only fear was that this thing in my chest might burst a little too soon and leave my work undone. (p. 234, Chapter VI, Part 2)
28. He was so hot that I think he would have thrashed Drebber with his cudgel, only that the cur staggered away down the road as fast as his legs would carry him. (p. 238, Chapter VI, Part 2)
29. I was thunderstruck at this, for it was the only memento that I had of her. (p. 246, Chapter VI, Part 2)

e. Conventional Implicatures “STILL”

1. I was still annoyed at his bumptious style of conversation. I thought it best to change the topic (p. 40, Chapter 2, Part 1)
2. There still remained some lurking suspicion in my mind, however, that the whole thing was a pre-arranged episode, intended to dazzle me, though what earthly object he could have in taking me in was past my comprehension. (p. 42, Chapter 3, Part 1)
3. Still I had had such extraordinary evidence of the quickness of his perceptive faculties, that I had no doubt that he could see a great deal which was hidden from me. (p. 49, Chapter 3, Part 1)
4. "There is much that is still obscure, though I have quite made up my mind on the main facts. (p. 70, Chapter 4, Part 1)
5. When they got inside they walked up and down the room—or rather, Patent-leathers stood still while Square-toes walked up and down. (p. 71, Chapter 4, Part 1)
6. "I am rather in the dark still. (p. 79, Chapter 4, Part 1)
7. Charles' head was still firm on his shoulders when this little brown-backed volume was struck off." (p. 87 Chapter 5, Part 1)
8. and knew that he was still pondering over the strange problem which he had set himself to unravel. (p. 95 Chapter 5, Part 1)
9. I still retain in my scrap-book numerous clippings and extracts bearing upon the case. Here is a condensation of a few of them:— (p. 96 Chapter 6, Part 1)
10. How he came there, or how he met his fate, are questions which are still involved in mystery. (p. 98 Chapter 6, Part 1)
11. "He still carried the heavy stick which the mother described him as having with him when he followed Drebber(p. 113 Chapter 6, Part 1)
12. "How is it now?" he answered anxiously, for she was still rubbing the towsy golden curls which covered the back of her head. (p. 142, Chapter I, Part 2)
13. He was still sitting with his elbows upon his knees, (p. 181 Chapter III, Part 2)
14. Still more surprised was he on entering to find two young men in possession of his sitting-room. (p. 185 Chapter IV, Part 2)
15. Still more shaken was he next morning. (p. 191 Chapter IV, Part 2)
16. how many days were still left to him out of the month of grace. (p. 192 Chapter IV, Part 2)
17. One by one the numbers dwindled down, and still there came no sign of him. (p. 192 Chapter IV, Part 2)
18. bread which were still lying upon the table from his host's supper, (p. 196 Chapter IV, Part 2)
19. They soon had a proof, however, that they were still within the jurisdiction of the Saint (p. 203 Chapter IV, Part 2)

20. The same dead silence still reigned all round. (p. 211 Chapter V, Part 2)
21. He was still speculating as to what this might mean when he heard the clatter of horse's hoofs, and saw a mounted man riding towards him. (p. 215 Chapter V, Part 2)
22. I had to walk beside him to keep him steady, for he was still a little top-heavy. (p. 242, Chapter VI, Part 2)
23. He shrunk still further away as I spoke, and I could see on his face that he thought I was mad.
24. Then I walked down to my cab and found that there was nobody about, and that the night was still very wild. (p. 246, Chapter VI, Part 2)
25. How well they succeeded, and how quickly I took advantage of it, are still fresh in your recollection. (p. 260, Chapter VII, Part 2)

f. Conventional Implicatures “YET”

1. “you don’t know Sherlock Holmes yet,” he said. (p. 9, Chapter 1, Part 1)
2. I am not strong enough yet to stand much noise or excitement (p. 10, Chapter 1, Part 1)
3. "And yet you say he is not a medical student?" (p. 12, Chapter 1, Part 1)
4. His hands were invariably blotted with ink and stained with chemicals, yet he was possessed of extraordinary delicacy of touch, as I frequently had occasion to observe when I watched him manipulating his fragile philosophical instruments. (p. 23, Chapter 2, Part 1)
5. It was upon the 4th of March, as I have good reason to remember, that I rose somewhat earlier than usual, and found that Sherlock Holmes had not yet finished his breakfast. (p. 31, Chapter 2, Part 1)
6. If you were asked to prove that two and two made four, you might find some difficulty, and yet you are quite sure of the fact. (p. 43, Chapter 3, Part 1)
7. "No data yet," he answered. "It is a capital mistake to theorize before you have all the evidence. It biases the judgment." (p. 47, Chapter 3, Part 1)
8. We shall make something of you yet." (p. 114 Chapter 6, Part 1)
9. And yet they are inert. What can it mean? Surely my whole chain of reasoning cannot have been false. It is impossible! And yet this wretched dog is none the worse. (p. 126 Chapter 7, Part 1)
10. As he stood, he leaned upon his weapon for support, and yet his tall figure and the massive framework of his bones suggested a wiry and vigorous constitution(p. 140, Chapter I, Part 2)
11. "It ain't night yet," she answered. (p. 146, Chapter I, Part 2)
12. Yet her bright and happy face reconciled him to the arrangement more than any argument could have done. (p. 174, Chapter III, Part 2)

13. It appeared to be omniscient and omnipotent, and yet was neither seen nor heard. (p. 175 Chapter III, Part 2)
14. and yet none knew what the nature might be of this terrible power which was suspended over them. (p. 175 Chapter III, Part 2)
15. yet the long journey and the accumulated terrors had shaken the hearts of the stoutest among them. (p. 159, Chapter II, Part 2)
16. He saw and he heard nothing, and yet in the morning a great 27 had been painted upon the outside of his door. (p. 191 Chapter IV, Part 2)
17. Yet the old man never wavered in his resolution to part with life itself before he consented to what he regarded as his daughter's dishonour. (p. 193 Chapter IV, Part 2)
18. Yet the white face(p. 199 Chapter IV, Part 2)
19. Yet in spite of all dangers and difficulties, (p. 203 Chapter IV, Part 2)
20. It was only too clear that some sudden and terrible disaster had occurred during his absence—a disaster which had embraced them all, and yet had left no traces behind it. (p. 211 Chapter V, Part 2)
21. If he died like a dog among the mountains, what was to become of his revenge then? And yet such a death was sure to overtake him if he persisted. (p. 221 Chapter V, Part 2)

ii. Conventional Implicature Additive Particles

a. Conventional Implicatures “TOO”

1. “Holmes is a little too scientific for my tastes—it approaches to cold-bloodedness. (p. 11, Chapter 1, Part 1)
2. “very right too” (p. 12, Chapter 1, Part 1)
3. "Very interesting reading it might be made, too," remarked Sherlock Holmes, sticking a small piece of plaster over the prick on his finger. (p. 17, Chapter 1, Part 1)
4. His chin, too, had the prominence and squareness which mark the man of determination. (p. 23, Chapter 2, Part 1)

5. They have their knives into one another, too. They are as jealous as a pair of professional beauties. (p. 45, Chapter 3, Part 1)
6. There were the marks of the horse's hoofs, too, the outline of one of which was far more clearly cut than that of the other three, showing that that was a new shoe. (p. 67, Chapter 4, Part 1)
7. Don't frighten him by looking at him too hard." (p. 87 Chapter 5, Part 1)
8. They are as sharp as needles, too; all they want is organisation." (p. 101 Chapter 6, Part 1)
9. "You do me too much honour," said Holmes, gravely. (p. 103 Chapter 6, Part 1)
10. Her daughter was in the room, too — an uncommonly fine girl she is, too; she was looking red about the eyes and her lips trembled as I spoke to her. (p. 105 Chapter 6, Part 1)
11. she is too innocent to understand. (p. 108 Chapter 6, Part 1)
12. This last was too much, however, and I gave him notice to leave on account of it. That was the reason of his going.'(p. 109 Chapter 6, Part 1)
13. I was too terrified to raise my head. (p. 110 Chapter 6, Part 1)
14. Lestrade went after his man, Stangerson, and it appears that he was wrong too. (p. 129, Chapter 7, Part 1)
15. It appeared to be somewhat too heavy for his strength, for in lowering it, it came down on the ground with some little violence. (p. 141, Chapter I, Part 2)
16. "Do you mean that we are going to die too?" asked the child, checking her sobs, and raising her tear-stained face. (p. 144, Chapter I, Part 2)
17. "And you too. I will tell her how awful good you've been. (p. 145, Chapter I, Part 2)
18. I guess It is never too late. (p. 147, Chapter I, Part 2)
19. "Then you'll need to kneel down, and me too," she said, (p. 147, Chapter I, Part 2)
20. That mysterious change is too subtle and too gradual to be measured by dates. (p. 164, Chapter II, Part 2)
21. Guess I am too old to learn. (p. 184 Chapter III, Part 2)
22. The creature was too unwieldy to lift, so the hunter contented himself with cutting away one haunch and part of the flank. (p. 209 Chapter V, Part 2)
23. It was only too clear that some sudden and terrible disaster had occurred during his absence—a disaster which had embraced them all, and yet had left no traces behind it. (p. 211 Chapter V, Part 2)
24. As the young fellow realised the certainty of her fate, and his own powerlessness to prevent it, he wished that he, too, was lying with the old farmer in his last silent resting-place. (p. 213 Chapter V, Part 2)
25. "Good! and Gregson can come inside with me. You too, Doctor, you have taken an interest in the case and may as well stick to us." (p. 227 Chapter VI, Part 2)

26. The thing was too evidently a blind. (p. 257, Chapter VII, Part 2)

b. Conventional Implicatures “ALSO”

1. Before sitting down, he had deposited upon the ground his useless rifle, and also a large bundle tied up in a grey shawl, which he had carried slung over his right shoulder. (p. 141, Chapter I, Part 2)
2. Let it be your task also to teach him our holy creed. (p. 157, Chapter I, Part 2)
3. With indomitable patience and perseverance, Jefferson Hope possessed also a power of sustained vindictiveness, which he may have learned from the Indians amongst whom he had lived. (p. 214 Chapter V, Part 2)
4. It seems that both the victims belonged, in their younger days, to the Latter Day Saints, and Hope, the deceased prisoner, hails also from Salt Lake City. (p. 261, Chapter VII, Part 2)

c. Conventional Implicatures “EITHER”

1. "Either his whole theory is incorrect," I thought to myself, "or else he will be led now to the heart of the mystery." (p. 92 Chapter 5, Part 1)
2. On inquiring at Number 13 we found that the house belonged to a respectable paperhanger, named Keswick, and that no one of the name either of Sawyer or Dennis had ever been heard of there." (p. 94 Chapter 5, Part 1)
3. without either you or the driver seeing her?" (p. 94 Chapter 5, Part 1)
4. Without meaning to hurt either of your feelings(p. 131, Chapter 7, Part 1)
5. After a time they were able to relax these measures, for nothing was either heard or seen of their opponent, and they hoped that time had cooled his vindictiveness. (p. 220 Chapter V, Part 2)
6. Now, at last your wanderings have come to an end, for either you or I shall never see to-morrow's sun rise.'(p. 243, Chapter VI, Part 2)

iii. Conventional Implicature Connectives

a. Conventional Implicatures “BUT”

1. The campaign brought honours and promoting to many, but for me it had nothing but misfortune and distater. (p. 4, Chapter 1, Part 1)
2. With my health irretrievably ruined, but with permission from a paternal goverment to spend the next nine months in attempting to improve it (p. 6, Chapter 1, Part 1)
3. “... I could imagine his giving a friend a little pinch of that latest vegetable alkaloid, not out of malevolence, you understand, but simply out of a spirit of inquiry in order to have an accurate idea of the effects...” (p. 11, Chapter 1, Part 1)
4. “Yes, but it may be pushed to excess...” (p. 12, Chapter 1, Part 1)
5. And he is a first-class chemist, but as far as I know, he has never taken out any systematic medical classes(p. 9, Chapter 1, Part 1)
6. In old days Stamford had never been a particular crony of mine, but now I hailed him with enthusiasm (p. 7, Chapter 1, Part 1)
7. "No. Heaven knows what the objects of his studies are. But here we are, and you must form your own impressions about him." (p. 12, Chapter 1, Part 1)
8. His studies are very desultory and eccentric, but he has amassed a lot of out-of-the way knowledge which would astonish his professors. (p. 9, Chapter 1, Part 1)
9. "It is interesting, chemically, no doubt," I answered, "but practically—" (p. 14, Chapter 1, Part 1)
10. I have another set of vices when I am well, but those are the principal ones at present." (p. 19, Chapter 1, Part 1)
11. Nothing could exceed his energy when the working fit was upon him; but now and again a reaction would seize him, and for days on end he would lie upon the sofa in the sitting-room, hardly uttering a word or moving a muscle from morning to night. (p. 22, Chapter 2, Part 1)
12. He will have nothing but the tools which may help him in doing his work, but of these he has a large assortment, and all in the most perfect order. (p. 26, Chapter 2, Part 1)
13. Geology—Practical, but limited. Tells at a glance different soils from each other. After walks has shown me splashes upon his trousers, and told me by their colour and consistence in what part of London he had received them (p. 28, Chapter 2, Part 1)
14. Anatomy—Accurate, but unsystematic (p. 28, Chapter 2, Part 1)
15. I see that I have alluded above to his powers upon the violin. These were very remarkable, but as eccentric as all his other accomplishments (p. 29, Chapter 2, Part 1)
16. Clearly they reflected the thoughts which possessed him, but whether the music aided those thoughts, or whether the playing was simply the result of a whim or fancy was more than I could determine. (p. 29, Chapter 2, Part 1)

17. I imagined at the time that he had some strong reason for not alluding to it, but he soon dispelled the idea by coming round to the subject of his own accord. (p. 31, Chapter 2, Part 1)
18. The reasoning was close and intense, but the deductions appeared to me to be far-fetched and exaggerated(p. 32, Chapter 2, Part 1)
19. "But do you mean to say," I said, "that without leaving your room you can unravel some knot which other men can make nothing of, although they have seen every detail for themselves?" (p. 36, Chapter 2, Part 1)
20. There were such steps, however. The train of reasoning ran, 'Here is a gentleman of a medical type, but with the air of a military man. (p. 37, Chapter 2, Part 1)
21. He had some analytical genius, no doubt; but he was by no means such a phenomenon as Poe appeared to imagine." (p. 38, Chapter 2, Part 1)
22. "This fellow may be very clever," I said to myself, "but he is certainly very conceited." (p. 39, Chapter 2, Part 1)
23. You broke the thread of my thoughts; but perhaps it is as well (p. 43, Chapter 3, Part 1)
24. There are marks of blood in the room, but there is no wound upon his person. (p. 45, Chapter 3, Part 1)
25. "But he begs you to help him." (p. 46, Chapter 3, Part 1)
26. There were many marks of footsteps upon the wet clayey soil, but since the police had been coming and going over it, I was unable to see how my companion could hope to learn anything from it. (p. 49, Chapter 3, Part 1)
27. A vulgar flaring paper adorned the walls, but it was blotched in places with mildew, and here and there great strips had become detached and hung down, exposing the yellow plaster beneath (p. 52, Chapter 3, Part 1)
28. I have seen death in many forms, but never has it appeared to me in a more fearsome aspect than in that dark grimy apartment, which looked out upon one of the main arteries of suburban London. (p. 54, Chapter 3, Part 1)
29. No purse, but loose money to the extent of seven pounds thirteen. . (p. 57, Chapter 3, Part 1)
30. It is all very well for you to laugh, Mr Sherlock Holmes. You may be very smart and clever, but the old hound is the best, when all is said and done." (p. 61, Chapter 3, Part 1)
31. I have not had time to examine this room yet, but with your permission I shall do so now." (p. 61, Chapter 3, Part 1)
32. "It is a very bad definition, but it does apply to detective work." (p. 63, Chapter 3, Part 1)
33. "Yes. He knows that I am his superior, and acknowledges it to me; but he would cut his tongue out before he would own it to any third

- person. However, we may as well go and have a look (p. 46, Chapter 3, Part 1)
34. "I have had advertisements sent to all the newspapers, and one of my men has gone to the American Exchange, but he has not returned yet." (p. 58, Chapter 3, Part 1)
 35. These are only a few indications, but they may assist you." (p. 64, Chapter 3, Part 1)
 36. "There is nothing like first hand evidence," he remarked, "as a matter of fact, my mind is entirely made up upon the case, but still we may as well learn all that is to be learned." (p. 66, Chapter 4, Part 1)
 37. "That seems simple enough," said I, "but how about the other man's height?" (p. 67, Chapter 4, Part 1)
 38. Now, a real German invariably prints in the Latin character, so that we may safely say that this was not written by one, but by a clumsy imitator who overdid his part. (p. 70, Chapter 4, Part 1)
 39. At eleven there was a fight at the 'White Hart'; but bar that all was quiet enough on the beat (p. 73, Chapter 4, Part 1)
 40. I ain't afear'd of anything on this side o' the grave; but I thought that maybe it was him that died o' the typhoid inspecting the drains what killed him. (p. 75, Chapter 4, Part 1)
 41. The thought gave me a kind o' turn, and I walked back to the gate to see if I could see Murcher's lantern, but there was not no sign of him nor of anyone else." (p. 75, Chapter 4, Part 1)
 42. "I have seen many a drunk chap in my time," he said, "but never anyone so cryin' drunk as that cove. (p. 77, Chapter 4, Part 1)
 43. We started off for the cab together, leaving our informant incredulous, but obviously uncomfortable. (p. 79, Chapter 4, Part 1)
 44. I might not have gone but for you, and so have missed the finest study I ever came across: a study in scarlet, eh? Why shouldn't we use a little art jargon. (p. 79, Chapter 4, Part 1)
 45. So sinister was the impression which that face had produced upon me that I found it difficult to feel anything but gratitude for him who had removed its owner from the world. (p. 81, Chapter 5, Part 1)
 46. Then, again, if not poison, what had caused the man's death, since there was neither wound nor marks of strangulation? But, on the other hand, whose blood was that which lay so thickly upon the floor? There were no signs of a struggle, nor had the victim any weapon with which he might have wounded an antagonist. (p. 82, Chapter 5, Part 1)
 47. "That is all right," I answered. "But supposing anyone applies, I have no ring." (p. 85 Chapter 5, Part 1)
 48. "That is all right," I answered. "But supposing anyone applies, I have no ring." (p. 85 Chapter 5, Part 1)
 49. "Does Dr Watson live here?" asked a clear but rather harsh voice. (p. 88 Chapter 5, Part 1)
 50. We could not hear the servant's reply, but the door closed, and someone began to ascend the stairs. (p. 88 Chapter 5, Part 1)

51. "My name is Sawyer—her's is Dennis, which Tom Dennis married her—and a smart, clean lad, too, as long as he is at sea, and no steward in the company more thought of; but when on shore, what with the women and what with liquor shops—"(p. 91 Chapter 5, Part 1)
52. It was close upon nine when he set out. I had no idea how long he might be, but I sat stolidly puffing at my pipe and skipping over the pages of Henri Murger's "Vie de Boheme. (p. 92 Chapter 5, Part 1)
53. I managed to be close to her so as to hear the address, but I need not have been so anxious, for she sang it out loud enough to be heard at the other side of the street, 'Drive to 13, Duncan Street, Houndsditch,' she cried. (p. 93 Chapter 5, Part 1)
54. It shows that the man we are after is not as lonely as I imagined he was, but has friends who are ready to risk something for him. (p. 95 Chapter 5, Part 1)
55. 'I had no intention of telling you all this, but since my poor daughter has disclosed it I have no alternative. (p. 108 Chapter 6, Part 1)
56. My son is on leave just now, but I did not tell him anything of all this, for his temper is violent, and he is passionately fond of his sister. (p. 109 Chapter 6, Part 1)
57. he door was locked on the inside, but we put our shoulders to it, and knocked it in. (p. 119 Chapter 7, Part 1)
58. "Nothing. Stangerson had Drebber's purse in his pocket, but it seems that this was usual, as he did all the paying(p. 121 Chapter 7, Part 1)
59. There was eighty odd pounds in it, but nothing had been taken. (p. 122 Chapter 7, Part 1)
60. There are, of course, details to be filled in, but I am as certain of all the main facts(p. 123, Chapter 7, Part 1)
61. The dog continued to lie stretched upon the cushion, breathing in a laboured way, but apparently neither the better nor the worse for its draught. (p. 125 Chapter 7, Part 1)
62. You have thrown out hints here, and hints there, and seem to know more than we do, but the time has come when we feel that we have a right to ask you straight how much you do know of the business. (p. 129, Chapter 7, Part 1)
63. I have good hopes of managing it through my own arrangements; but it is a thing which needs delicate handling(p. 130, Chapter 7, Part 1)
64. long as this man has no idea that anyone can have a clue there is some chance of securing him; but if he had the slightest suspicion, (p. 131, Chapter 7, Part 1)
65. incur all the blame due to this omission; but that I am prepared for. (p. 131, Chapter 7, Part 1)
66. Woodwork and glass gave way before him; but before he got quite through, Gregson, Lestrade, and Holmes sprang upon him like so many staghounds(p. 134, Chapter 7, Part 1)

67. His face and hands were terribly mangled by his passage through the glass, but loss of blood had no effect in diminishing his resistance(p. 134, Chapter 7, Part 1)
68. A band of Pawnees or of Blackfeet may occasionally traverse it in order to reach other hunting-grounds, but the hardiest of the braves are glad to lose sight of those awesome plains, and to find themselves once more upon their prairies. (p. 137, Chapter I, Part 2)
69. Listen as one may, there is no shadow of a sound in all that mighty wilderness; nothing but silence — complete and heart-subduing silence. (p. 139, Chapter I, Part 2)
70. The child was pale and wan, but her healthy arms and legs showed that she had suffered less than her companion. (p. 142, Chapter I, Part 2)
71. It ain't easy to talk when your lips is like leather, but I guess I'd best let you know how the cards lie. What's that you've got?" (p. 143, Chapter I, Part 2)
72. "Well, we reckoned we'd strike another river soon, d'ye see. But there was somethin' wrong; compasses, or map, or somethin', and it did not turn up. (p. 143, Chapter I, Part 2)
73. "It don't matter. It ain't quite regular, but He will not mind that, you bet. (p. 146, Chapter I, Part 2)
74. It was a strange sight had there been anything but the buzzards to see it. (p. 147, Chapter I, Part 2)
75. He watched over her slumber for some time, but Nature proved to be too strong for him. (p. 148, Chapter I, Part 2)
76. the apparition revealed itself as being a great caravan upon its journey for the West. But what a caravan! When the head of it had reached the base of the mountains, the rear was not yet visible on the horizon. (p. 149, Chapter I, Part 2)
77. This was evidently no ordinary party of immigrants, but rather some nomad people who had been compelled from stress of circumstances to seek themselves a new country. (p. 149, Chapter I, Part 2)
78. and against this boulder there lay a tall man, long-bearded and hard-featured, but of an excessive thinness. (p. 152, Chapter I, Part 2)
79. The child stood beside him, holding on to the skirt of his coat, and said nothing but looked all round her with the wondering questioning gaze of childhood. (p. 153, Chapter I, Part 2)
80. Their escort did not halt, however, but pushed on, followed by a great crowd of Mormons, (p. 156, Chapter I, Part 2)
81. Beside the driver there sat a man who could not have been more than thirty years of age, but whose massive head and resolute expression marked him as a leader. (p. 156, Chapter I, Part 2)
82. He never gave reasons for this persistent refusal, but contented himself by resolutely and inflexibly adhering to his determination. (p. 162, Chapter II, Part 2)

83. she was not alarmed at her situation, but took advantage of every opportunity to urge her horse on in the hopes of pushing her way through the cavalcade. (p. 166, Chapter II, Part 2)
84. In an instant it reared up upon its hind legs with a snort of rage, and pranced and tossed in a way that would have unseated any but a most skilful rider. (p. 167, Chapter II, Part 2)
85. she might have abandoned her efforts in despair, but for a kindly voice at her elbow which assured her of assistance(p. 167, Chapter II, Part 2)
86. changeable fancy of a boy, but rather the wild, (p. 170, Chapter II, Part 2)
87. Lucy was silent, but her blushing cheek and her bright, happy eyes, showed only too clearly that her young heart was no longer her own. (p. 171, Chapter II, Part 2)
88. Her honest father may not have observed these symptoms, but they were assuredly not thrown away upon the man who had won her affections. (p. 172, Chapter II, Part 2)
89. Such a marriage he regarded as no marriage at all, but as a shame and a disgrace(p. 174, Chapter III, Part 2)
90. His wife and his children awaited him at home, but no father ever returned to tell them how he had fared at the hands of his secret judges. (p. 175 Chapter III, Part 2)
91. "In return for all this we asked but one condition: (p. 178 Chapter III, Part 2)
92. "It is true that I have not married," Ferrier answered. "But women were few, and there were many who had better claims than I. (p. 179 Chapter III, Part 2)
93. This must be the gossip of idle tongues. John Ferrier made no answer, but he played nervously with his riding-whip. (p. 180 Chapter III, Part 2)
94. We Elders have many heifers, [1] but our children must also be provided. (p. 180 Chapter III, Part 2)
95. "When he comes, he will advise us for the best. But it is for you that I am frightened, dear. (p. 183 Chapter III, Part 2)
96. John Ferrier uttered these consoling remarks in a very confident tone, but she could not help observing that he paid unusual care to the fastening of the doors that night, (p. 184 Chapter III, Part 2)
97. As I have but four wives and Brother Drebber here has seven, it appears to me that my claim is the stronger one." (p. 186 Chapter IV, Part 2)
98. "when my daughter summons you, you can come, but until then I don't want to see your faces again." (p. 187 Chapter IV, Part 2)
99. "He grindeth slowly but exceeding small." (p. 186 Chapter IV, Part 2)
100. "And so should I, father," she answered, with spirit; "but Jefferson will soon be here." (p. 189 Chapter IV, Part 2)

101. He was a brave man, but he trembled at the vague, shadowy terrors which hung over him. (p. 190 Chapter IV, Part 2)
102. He crumpled the paper up and said nothing to his daughter, but the incident struck a chill into his heart. (p. 191 Chapter IV, Part 2)
103. Twenty had changed to fifteen and fifteen to ten, but there was no news of the absentee. (p. 192 Chapter IV, Part 2)
104. In the silence he heard a gentle scratching sound—low, but very distinct in the quiet of the night. It came from the door of the house. (p. 194 Chapter IV, Part 2)
105. His first thought was that the prostrate figure was that of some wounded or dying man, but as he watched it he saw it writhe along the ground and into the hall with the rapidity and noiselessness of a serpent. (p. 195 Chapter IV, Part 2)
106. The little front garden lay before the farmer's eyes bounded by the fence and gate, but neither there nor on the road was any human being to be seen. (p. 195 Chapter IV, Part 2)
107. They may be darned sharp, but they're not quite sharp enough to catch a Washoe hunter." (p. 196 Chapter IV, Part 2)
108. "I have a respect for you, but if you were alone in this business I'd think twice before I put my head into such a hornet's nest. (p. 197 Chapter IV, Part 2)
109. The greeting between the lovers was warm, but brief, for minutes were precious, and there was much to be done. (p. 198 Chapter IV, Part 2)
110. speaking in a low but resolute voice, like one who realises the greatness of the peril, but has steeled his heart to meet it. "(p. 198 Chapter IV, Part 2)
111. The front and back entrances are watched, but with caution we may get away through the side window and across the fields. (p. 198 Chapter IV, Part 2)
112. All night their course lay through intricate defiles and over irregular and rock-strewn paths. More than once they lost their way, but Hope's intimate knowledge of the mountains enabled them to regain the track once more. (p. 205 Chapter V, Part 2)
113. Lucy and her father would fain have rested longer, but Jefferson Hope was inexorable. (p. 206 Chapter V, Part 2)
114. On the edge of a jutting pinnacle, three or four hundred feet above him, there stood a creature somewhat resembling a sheep in appearance, but armed with a pair of gigantic horns. (p. 206 Chapter V, Part 2)
115. The big-horn—for so it is called—was acting, probably, as a guardian over a flock which were invisible to the hunter; but fortunately it was heading in the opposite direction, and had not perceived him. (p. 208 Chapter V, Part 2)
116. Convinced that he had taken the wrong turn, he tried another, but with the same result. (p. 209 Chapter V, Part 2)

117. There was still a glowing pile of wood ashes there, but it had evidently not been tended since his departure. (p. 211 Chapter V, Part 2)
118. here was no mistaking it for anything but a newly-dug grave. (p. 212 Chapter V, Part 2)
119. The inscription upon the paper was brief, but to the point: (p. 213 Chapter V, Part 2)
120. Jefferson Hope looked wildly round to see if there was a second grave, but there was no sign of one. (p. 213 Chapter V, Part 2)
121. At night he flung himself down among the rocks, and snatched a few hours of sleep; but before daybreak he was always well on his way. (p. 214 Chapter V, Part 2)
122. they would both been in the party that followed them, and Stangerson had shot her father, which seemed to give him the best claim; but when they argued it out in council, Drebber's party was the stronger, so the Prophet gave her over to him. (p. 217 Chapter V, Part 2)
123. hether it was the terrible death of her father or the effects of the hateful marriage into which she had been forced, poor Lucy never held up her head again, but pined away and died within a month. (p. 218 Chapter V, Part 2)
124. Her sottish husband, who had married her principally for the sake of John Ferrier's property, did not affect any great grief at his bereavement; but his other wives mourned over her, and sat up with her the night before the burial, as is the Mormon custom. (p. 218 Chapter V, Part 2)
125. The two young Mormons were not long in discovering the reason of these attempts upon their lives, and led repeated expeditions into the mountains in the hope of capturing or killing their enemy, but always without success. (p. 220 Chapter V, Part 2)
126. His intention had been to be absent a year at the most, but a combination of unforeseen circumstances prevented his leaving the mines for nearly five(p. 221 Chapter V, Part 2)
127. Many a man, however vindictive, would have abandoned all thought of revenge in the face of such a difficulty, but Jefferson Hope never faltered for a moment. (p. 222 Chapter V, Part 2)
128. Year passed into year, his black hair turned grizzled, but still he wandered on, a human bloodhound, with his mind wholly set upon the one object upon which he had devoted his life(p. 223 Chapter V, Part 2)
129. It was but a glance of a face in a window, but that one glance told him that Cleveland in Ohio possessed the men whom he was in pursuit of. (p. 223 Chapter V, Part 2)
130. At last, having collected enough to keep life in him, he departed for Europe, and tracked his enemies from city to city, working his way in any menial capacity, but never overtaking the fugitives. (p. 224 Chapter V, Part 2)

131. Gregson and Lestrade exchanged glances as if they thought this proposition rather a bold one; but Holmes at once took the prisoner at his word, and loosened the towel which we had bound round his ankles. (p. 226 Chapter VI, Part 2)
132. Our prisoner made no attempt at escape, but stepped calmly into the cab which had been his, and we followed him. (p. 227 Chapter VI, Part 2)
133. I have done my work now, and I don't care how soon I go, but I should like to leave some account of the business behind me. (p. 229, Chapter VI, Part 2)
134. They thought to tire me out, but they could not do it. (p. 232, Chapter VI, Part 2)
135. There was seldom much over, but I managed to scrape along somehow. (p. 232, Chapter VI, Part 2)
136. Drebber himself was drunk half the time, but Stangerson was not to be caught napping. (p. 234, Chapter VI, Part 2)
137. I watched them late and early, but never saw the ghost of a chance; but I was not discouraged, for something told me that the hour had almost come. (p. 234, Chapter VI, Part 2)
138. Stangerson seemed to be put out at that, but Drebber was rather pleased than otherwise.
139. I could not catch what Stangerson said to that, but the other burst out swearing, and reminded him that he was nothing more than his paid servant, and that he must not presume to dictate to him. (p. 235, Chapter VI, Part 2)
140. Together they could protect each other, but singly they were at my mercy. (p. 236, Chapter VI, Part 2)
141. I could not imagine what his intention was in returning there; but I went on and pulled up my cab a hundred yards or so from the house. (p. 237, Chapter VI, Part 2)
142. It would only have been rigid justice if I had done so, but I could not bring myself to do it. (p. 239, Chapter VI, Part 2)
143. I had always known that vengeance would be sweet, but I had never hoped for the contentment of soul which now possessed me. (p. 243, Chapter VI, Part 2)
144. 'Punishment has been slow in coming, but it has overtaken you at last.' (p. 243, Chapter VI, Part 2)
145. He would have begged for his life, but he knew well that it was useless. (p. 243, Chapter VI, Part 2)
146. "'But it was you who broke her innocent heart,' I shrieked, thrusting the box before him. 'Let the high God judge between us. Choose and eat.' (p. 244, Chapter VI, Part 2)
147. 'He cowered away with wild cries and prayers for mercy, but I drew my knife and held it to his throat until he had obeyed me.' (p. 244, Chapter VI, Part 2)

- 148."The blood had been streaming from my nose, but I had taken no notice of it. (p. 245, Chapter VI, Part 2)
- 149.I lit a cigar, and puffed at it to steady my nerves, but my hands were trembling, and my temples throbbing with excitement(p. 241, Chapter VI, Part 2)
- 150.It would have been the same in any case, for Providence would never have allowed his guilty hand to pick out anything but the poison. (p. 247, Chapter VI, Part 2)
- 151.You may consider me to be a murderer; but I hold that I am just as much an officer of justice as you are." (p. 248, Chapter VI, Part 2)
- 152."I can tell my own secrets," he said, "but I don't get other people into trouble. (p. 249, Chapter VI, Part 2)
- 153.We had all been warned to appear before the magistrates upon the Thursday; but when the Thursday came there was no occasion for our testimony. (p. 251, Chapter VII, Part 2)
- 154.That is a very useful accomplishment, and a very easy one, but people do not practise it much. (p. 252, Chapter VII, Part 2)
- 155.No doubt it appeared to you to be a mere trampled line of slush, but to my trained eyes every mark upon its surface had a meaning. (p. 254, Chapter VII, Part 2)
- 156.There was no wound upon the dead man's person, but the agitated expression upon his face assured me that he had foreseen his fate before it came upon him(p. 255, Chapter VII, Part 2)
- 157.I saw the heavy footmarks of the constables, but I saw also the track of the two men who had first passed through the garden. (p. 255, Chapter VII, Part 2)
- 158.The murder of Stangerson was an incident which was entirely unexpected, but which could hardly in any case have been prevented. (p. 260, Chapter VII, Part 2)
- 159.He had but one hope in life now, (p. 192 Chapter IV, Part 2)
- 160.It was some time before I found out where my two gentlemen were living; but I inquired and inquired until at last I dropped across them. (p. 233, Chapter VI, Part 2)
- 161.Sometimes I followed them on my cab, and sometimes on foot, but the former was the best, for then they could not get away from me. (p. 233, Chapter VI, Part 2)
- 162.I knew that he was staying at Halliday's Private Hotel, and I hung about all day, but he never came out. (p. 246, Chapter VI, Part 2)
- 163.It is true that the description of this man tallies with your idea of the second party in this mystery. But why should he come back to the house after leaving it? That is not the way of criminals." (p. 79, Chapter 4, Part 1)
- 164.It belongs to my girl Sally, as was married only this time twelvemonth, which her husband is steward aboard a Union boat, and what he had say if he come 'ome and found her without her ring is

- more than I can think, he being short enough at the best o' times, but more especially when he has the drink. (p. 89 Chapter 5, Part 1)
165. I have money enough and to spare. Never mind the old girl here, but come along with me now straight away. (p. 110 Chapter 6, Part 1)
- 166.....and hardly to be distinguished from the mists of the distance, but gradually growing higher and broader until it formed a solid, well-defined cloud. (p. 148, Chapter I, Part 2)

b. Conventional Implicatures “SO”

1. So alarming did the state of my finances become (p. 6, Chapter 1, Part 1)
2. “...Is this fellow’s temper so formidable, or what is it? Don’t be mealy-mouthed about it.” (p. 11, Chapter 1, Part 1)
3. So desirable in every way were the apartments, (p. 21, Chapter 2, Part 1)
4. and so moderate did the terms seem when divided between us, that the bargain was concluded upon the spot, and we at once entered into possession. (p. 21, Chapter 2, Part 1)
5. In height he was rather over six feet, and so excessively lean that he seemed to be considerably taller. (p. 23, Chapter 2, Part 1)
6. Yet his zeal for certain studies was remarkable, and within eccentric limits his knowledge was so extraordinarily ample and minute that his observations have fairly astounded me. (p. 24, Chapter 2, Part 1)
7. The landlady had become so accustomed to my late habits that my place had not been laid nor my coffee prepared. (p. 31, Chapter 2, Part 1)
8. His conclusions were as infallible as so many propositions of Euclid. (p. 32, Chapter 2, Part 1)
9. The theories which I have expressed there, and which appear to you to be so chimerical are really extremely practical—so practical that I depend upon them for my bread and cheese." (p. 35, Chapter 2, Part 1)
10. From long habit the train of thoughts ran so swiftly through my mind, that I arrived at the conclusion without being conscious of intermediate steps. (p. 37, Chapter 2, Part 1)
11. There is no crime to detect, or, at most, some bungling villany with a motive so transparent that even a Scotland Yard official can see through it." (p. 40, Chapter 2, Part 1)
12. "I have had so much to do inside the house," the detective said evasively. (p. 51, Chapter 3, Part 1)
13. So engrossed was he with his occupation that he appeared to have forgotten our presence, for he chattered away to himself under his breath the whole time, keeping up a running fire of exclamations, groans, whistles, and little cries suggestive of encouragement and of hope. (p. 62, Chapter 3, Part 1)

14. Ye see, when I got up to the door it was so still and so lonesome, that I thought I'd be none the worse for some one with me. (p. 75, Chapter 4, Part 1)
15. He was very late in returning—so late, that I knew that the concert could not have detained him all the time. Dinner was on the table before he appeared. (p. 82, Chapter 5, Part 1)
16. Perhaps that is why we are so subtly influenced by it. (p. 83, Chapter 5, Part 1)
17. "'Tention!" cried Holmes, in a sharp tone, and the six dirty little scoundrels stood in a line like so many disreputable statuettes. (p. 100 Chapter 6, Part 1)
18. He waved his hand, and they scampered away downstairs like so many rats, and we heard their shrill voices next moment in the street. (p. 100 Chapter 6, Part 1)
19. Not so much bodily exertion, you understand, as the strain upon the mind. (p. 102 Chapter 6, Part 1)
20. The fun of it is," he cried, "that, that fool Lestrade, who thinks himself so smart, has gone off upon the wrong track altogether(p. 103 Chapter 6, Part 1)
21. The idea tickled Gregson so much that he laughed until he choked. (p. 103 Chapter 6, Part 1)
22. " Poor Alice was so frightened that she shrunk away from him, but he caught her by the wrist and endeavoured to draw her towards the door. (p. 110 Chapter 6, Part 1)
23. At times she spoke so low that I could hardly catch the words. (p. 111 Chapter 6, Part 1)
24. The night was so wet that no one was about, so Charpentier dragged the body of his victim into the empty house. (p. 113 Chapter 6, Part 1)
25. As to the candle, and the blood, and the writing on the wall, and the ring, they may all be so many tricks to throw the police on to the wrong scent." (p. 113 Chapter 6, Part 1)
26. There was something so methodical and so incomprehensible about the deeds of this unknown assassin, (p. 120 Chapter 7, Part 1)
27. He came down so quietly and openly that the boy imagined him to be some carpenter or joiner at work in the hotel. (p. 121 Chapter 7, Part 1)
28. poor little devil of a terrier which has been bad so long (p. 124 Chapter 7, Part 1)
29. Sherlock Holmes earnest demeanour had so far convinced us(p. 125 Chapter 7, Part 1)
30. So great was his emotion, (p. 126 Chapter 7, Part 1)
31. This last statement appeared to me to be so startling (p. 127 Chapter 7, Part 1)
32. The whole thing occurred in a moment — so quickly that I had no time to realise it (p. 133, Chapter 7, Part 1)
33. So powerful and so fierce was he (p. 134, Chapter 7, Part 1)

34. When I had got so far in my list I threw it into the fire in despair. "If I can only find what the fellow is driving at by reconciling all these accomplishments, and discovering a calling which needs them all," I said to myself, "I may as well give up the attempt at once." (p. 28, Chapter 2, Part 1)
35. The solitary window was so dirty that the light was hazy and uncertain, giving a dull grey tinge to everything, which was intensified by the thick layer of dust which coated the whole apartment. (p. 52, Chapter 3, Part 1)
36. What's that little thing of Chopin's she plays so magnificently: Tra-la-la-lira-lira-lay (p. 80, Chapter 4, Part 1)
37. His gaunt face, however, and his clothes, which hung so baggily over his shrivelled limbs, proclaimed what it was that gave him that senile and decrepit appearance. (p. 140, Chapter I, Part 2)
38. In the blue vault of the heaven there had appeared three little specks which increased in size every moment, so rapidly did they approach. (p. 145, Chapter I, Part 2)
39. The man staggered to his feet and looked down upon the plain which had been so desolate when sleep had overtaken him, and which was now traversed by this enormous body of men and of beasts. (p. 153, Chapter I, Part 2)
40. So rapidly did he gain the esteem of his new companions, (p. 161, Chapter II, Part 2)
41. which received so many additions in succeeding years that it grew into a roomy villa. (p. 161, Chapter II, Part 2)
42. The young hunter's dark face grew so gloomy over this remark that Lucy Ferrier laughed aloud. (p. 169, Chapter II, Part 2)
43. Yes, a dangerous matter—so dangerous that even the most saintly dared only whisper their religious opinions with bated breath, (p. 174, Chapter III, Part 2)
44. His brown face looked so savage, and his gaunt hands so threatening, (p. 188 Chapter IV, Part 2)
45. All looked so peaceful and happy (p. 199 Chapter IV, Part 2)
46. Then I thought there was some chance of water in this direction, so I heaved you over my shoulder and we tramped it together. (p. 144, Chapter I, Part 2)
47. "Why did not you say so before?" she said, laughing gleefully. (p. 145, Chapter I, Part 2)
48. The valley in which he found himself divided and sub-divided into many gorges, which were so like each other that it was impossible to distinguish one from the other. (p. 209 Chapter V, Part 2)
49. The sturdy old man, whom he had left so short a time before, was gone, then, and this was all his epitaph. (p. 213 Chapter V, Part 2)
50. His face might have been chiselled out of marble, so hard and set was its expression, while its eyes glowed with a baleful light. (p. 217 Chapter V, Part 2)

51. "Never mind," he answered; and, slinging his weapon over his shoulder, strode off down the gorge and so away into the heart of the mountains to the haunts of the wild beasts. (p. 218 Chapter V, Part 2)
52. Amongst them all there was none so fierce and so dangerous as himself. (p. 218 Chapter V, Part 2)
53. So strange and so brief was the episode, that the watchers might have found it hard to believe it themselves or persuade other people of it, had it not been for the undeniable fact that the circlet of gold which marked her as having been a bride had disappeared. (p. 219, Chapter V, Part 2)
54. Far from doing so, it had, if anything, augmented it. (p. 220 Chapter V, Part 2)
55. Again the avenger had been foiled, and again his concentrated hatred urged him to continue the pursuit. (p. 224 Chapter V, Part 2)
56. I am not so light to lift as I used to be." (p. 226 Chapter VI, Part 2)
57. I did so, and became at once conscious of an extraordinary throbbing and commotion which was going on inside. (p. 228, Chapter VI, Part 2)
58. "They were rich and I was poor, so that it was no easy matter for me to follow them. (p. 232, Chapter VI, Part 2)
59. Driving and riding are as natural to me as walking, so I applied at a cabowner's office, and soon got employment. (p. 232, Chapter VI, Part 2)
60. I got so close to them in the bustle that I could hear every word that passed between them. (p. 235, Chapter VI, Part 2)
61. "The moment for which I had waited so long had at last come. (p. 236, Chapter VI, Part 2)
62. I followed it so close that the nose of my horse was within a yard of his driver the whole way. (p. 237, Chapter VI, Part 2)
63. When I had him fairly inside my cab, my heart jumped so with joy that I feared lest at this last moment my aneurism might go wrong. (p. 239, Chapter VI, Part 2)
64. There he remained until closing time, and when he came out he was so far gone that I knew the game was in my own hands. (p. 239, Chapter VI, Part 2)
65. One day the professor was lecturing on poisons, and he showed his students some alkaloid, as he called it, which he had extracted from some South American arrow poison, and which was so powerful that the least grain meant instant death. (p. 240, Chapter VI, Part 2)
66. I was a fairly good dispenser, so I worked this alkaloid into small, soluble pills, and each pill I put in a box with a similar pill made without the poison. (p. 240, Chapter VI, Part 2)
67. Dismal as it was outside, I was glad within—so glad that I could have shouted out from pure exultation(p. 241, Chapter VI, Part 2)
68. So I was for the time. (p. 243, Chapter VI, Part 2)

69. All I had to do then was to do as much for Stangerson, and so pay off John Ferrier's debt. (p. 246, Chapter VI, Part 2)
70. I soon found out which was the window of his bedroom, and early next morning I took advantage of some ladders which were lying in the lane behind the hotel, and so made my way into his room in the grey of the dawn. (p. 247, Chapter VI, Part 2)
71. I woke him up and told him that the hour had come when he was to answer for the life he had taken so long before. (p. 247, Chapter VI, Part 2)
72. I went on cabbing it for a day or so, intending to keep at it until I could save enough to take me back to America(p. 248, Chapter VI, Part 2)
73. So thrilling had the man's narrative been, and his manner was so impressive that we had sat silent and absorbed. (p. 248, Chapter VI, Part 2)
74. In the every-day affairs of life it is more useful to reason forwards, and so the other comes to be neglected. (p. 253, Chapter VII, Part 2)
75. There is no branch of detective science which is so important and so much neglected as the art of tracing footsteps. (p. 254, Chapter VII, Part 2)

c. Conventional Implicatures “THEREFORE”

1. Depend upon it there comes a time when for every addition of knowledge you forget something that you knew before. It is of the highest importance, therefore, not to have useless facts elbowing out the useful ones." (p. 26, Chapter 2, Part 1)
2. I was knocked all in a heap therefore at seeing a light in the window, and I suspected as something was wrong. (p. 74, Chapter 4, Part 1)
3. He therefore accosted him when he got up to him, with the object of finding out what Lucy Ferrier's fate had been. (p. 215 Chapter V, Part 2)
4. "It don't much matter to you why I hated these men," he said; "It is enough that they were guilty of the death of two human beings—a father and a daughter—and that they had, therefore, forfeited their own lives(p. 231, Chapter VI, Part 2)
5. I therefore organised my Street Arab detective corps, and sent them systematically to every cab proprietor in London until they ferreted out the man that I wanted. (p. 260, Chapter VII, Part 2)
6. I had neither kith nor kin in England, and was therefore as free as air – or as free as an income of eleven shillings and sixpence a day will permit a man to be. (p. 6, Chapter 1, Part 1)

iv. Conventional Implicature Implicative Verbs

a. Conventional Implicatures “FAIL”

1. They evidently failed to appreciate the fact, which I had begun to realise, that Sherlock Holmes' smallest actions were all directed towards some definite and practical end. (p. 63, Chapter 3, Part 1)
2. because you failed at the beginning of the inquiry to grasp the importance of the single real clue(p. 128 Chapter 7, Part 1)
3. We have both tried, and we have both failed. You have remarked more than once since I have been in the room that you had all the evidence which you require(p. 129, Chapter 7, Part 1)
4. If I fail I shall, of course(p. 131, Chapter 7, Part 1)
5. as though afraid that his resolution might fail him if he took one glance at what he was leaving. (p. 173, Chapter II, Part 2)
6. when her strength appeared to fail her. (p. 201 Chapter IV, Part 2)

7. I fancy that he suspected something when Drebber failed to put in an appearance. (p. 247, Chapter VI, Part 2)
- b. Conventional Implicatures “MANAGE”
1. When these fellows are at fault they come to me, and I manage to put them on the right scent. (p. 35, Chapter 2, Part 1)
 2. "We are anxious to know how you managed it. Will you have some whiskey and water?" (p. 102 Chapter 6, Part 1)
 3. "I flatter myself that I have managed it rather neatly," the detective answered proudly(p. 114 Chapter 6, Part 1)
 4. H ave you managed to find the Secretary, Mr Joseph Stangerson?" (p. 115 Chapter 6, Part 1)
 5. and I will manage to send him a message letting him know the hole we are in. (p. 182 Chapter III, Part 2)
 6. "Wait till Jefferson comes, and we'll soon manage that. (p. 184 Chapter III, Part 2)
 7. Only once did they meet anyone, and then they managed to slip into a field, and so avoid recognition. (p. 201 Chapter IV, Part 2)
 8. Rumour reported that Drebber had managed to convert a large part of his property into money, and that he had departed a wealthy man, while his companion, Stangerson, was comparatively poor. (p. 222 Chapter V, Part 2)
 9. When I arrived there, I walked right into the arms of a police-officer who was coming out, and only managed to disarm his suspicions by pretending to be hopelessly drunk. (p. 246, Chapter VI, Part 2)
- v. Conventional Implicature Subordinating Conjunctions
- a. Conventional Implicatures “EVENTHOUGH”
 1. We have come to seek a refuge from the violent man and from the godless, even though it be the heart of the desert." (p. 155, Chapter I, Part 2)
- vi. Conventional Implicature Epistemic
- a. Conventional Implicatures “WOULD”

1. His studies are very desultory and eccentric, but he has amassed a lot of out-of-the way knowledge which would astonish his professors. (p. 9, Chapter 1, Part 1)
2. Had this test been invented, there are hundreds of men now walking the earth who would long ago have paid the penalty of their crimes." (p. 15, Chapter 1, Part 1)
3. He would certainly have been hung had this test been in existence. (p. 16, Chapter 1, Part 1)
4. I could name a score of cases in which it would have been decisive." (p. 17, Chapter 1, Part 1)
5. which would suit us down to the ground. You don't mind the smell of strong tobacco, I hope?" (p. 18, Chapter 1, Part 1)
6. My health forbade me from venturing out unless the weather was exceptionally genial, and I had no friends who would call upon me and break the monotony of my daily existence (p. 24, Chapter 2, Part 1).
7. Neither did he appear to have pursued any course of reading which might fit him for a degree in science or any other recognised portal which would give him an entrance into the learned world. (p. 24, Chapter 2, Part 1)
8. Surely no man would work so hard or attain such precise information unless he had some definite end in view. (p. 24, Chapter 2, Part 1)
9. I was on the point of asking him what that work might be, but something in his manner showed me that the question would be an unwelcome one. (p. 27, Chapter 2, Part 1)
10. He said that he would acquire no knowledge which did not bear upon his object. (p. 27, Chapter 2, Part 1)
11. Therefore all the knowledge which he possessed was such as would be useful to him. (p. 27, Chapter 2, Part 1)
12. When left to himself, however, he would seldom produce any music or attempt any recognised air. (p. 29, Chapter 2, Part 1)
13. Leaning back in his arm-chair of an evening, he would close his eyes and scrape carelessly at the fiddle which was thrown across his knee. (p. 29, Chapter 2, Part 1)
14. When any of these nondescript individuals put in an appearance, Sherlock Holmes used to beg for the use of the sitting-room, and I would retire to my bed-room. (p. 31, Chapter 2, Part 1)
15. So startling would his results appear to the uninitiated that until they learned the processes by which he had arrived at them they might well consider him as a necromancer. (p. 32, Chapter 2, Part 1)
16. I would lay a thousand to one against him." (p. 35, Chapter 2, Part 1)
17. "You would lose your money," Sherlock Holmes remarked calmly. "As for the article I wrote it myself." (p. 35, Chapter 2, Part 1)

18. If you are unable to come I shall give you fuller details, and would esteem it a great kindness if you would favour me with your opinion." (p. 45, Chapter 3, Part 1)
19. I had imagined that Sherlock Holmes would at once have hurried into the house and plunged into a study of the mystery. (p. 48, Chapter 3, Part 1)
20. So swiftly was the examination made, that one would hardly have guessed the minuteness with which it was conducted. . (p. 55, Chapter 3, Part 1)
21. "Mr Gregson," he said, "I have just made a discovery of the highest importance, and one which would have been overlooked had I not made a careful examination of the walls." (p. 59, Chapter 3, Part 1)
22. It was lit at the time, and if it was lit this corner would be the brightest instead of the darkest portion of the wall." (p. 60, Chapter 3, Part 1)
23. "It would be robbing you of the credit of the case if I was to presume to help you," remarked my friend. (p. 63, Chapter 3, Part 1)
24. "You are doing so well now that it would be a pity for anyone to interfere." (p. 63, Chapter 3, Part 1)
25. My glass allowed me to observe that the plaster was slightly scratched in doing it, which would not have been the case if the man's nail had been trimmed. (p. 68, Chapter 4, Part 1)
26. Presently—maybe about two or a little after—I thought I would take a look round and see that all was right down the Brixton Road (p. 74, Chapter 4, Part 1)
27. I was a strollin' down, thinkin' between ourselves how uncommon handy a four of gin hot would be, when suddenly the glint of a light caught my eye in the window of that same house. (p. 74, Chapter 4, Part 1)
28. As long as all these questions were unsolved, I felt that sleep would be no easy matter, either for Holmes or myself. (p. 82, Chapter 5, Part 1)
29. "If I used my own some of these dunderheads would recognise it, and want to meddle in the affair." (p. 84, Chapter 5, Part 1)
30. What would he do, then? He would eagerly look out for the evening papers in the hope of seeing it among the articles found. (p. 86 Chapter 5, Part 1)
31. His eye, of course, would light upon this. He would be overjoyed. Why should he fear a trap? There would be no reason in his eyes why the finding of the ring should be connected with the murder. He would come. He will come. (p. 86 Chapter 5, Part 1)
32. "My fiddle would be the better for new strings," he remarked. (p. 87 Chapter 5, Part 1)
33. "I wouldn't have the Scotland Yarders know it for the world," he cried, dropping into his chair; "I have chaffed them so much that they would never have let me hear the end of it. (p. 93 Chapter 5, Part 1)
34. "I told you that, whatever happened, Lestrade and Gregson would be sure to score." (p. 99 Chapter 6, Part 1)

35. "I hardly expected you would. You must keep on until you do. (p. 100 Chapter 6, Part 1)
36. Some people would have waited until their advertisements were answered, or until parties came forward and volunteered information. (p. 104 Chapter 6, Part 1)
37. "'Arthur would rather that we spoke the truth,' the girl answered firmly. (p. 107 Chapter 6, Part 1)
38. His high character, his profession, his antecedents would all forbid it.'(p. 107 Chapter 6, Part 1)
39. "I thought you would come to that conclusion. (p. 115 Chapter 6, Part 1)
40. the natural course for the latter would be to put up somewhere in the vicinity for the night (p. 117 Chapter 7, Part 1)
41. The intelligence with which Lestrade greeted us was so momentous and so unexpected, "They would be likely to agree on some meeting-place beforehand," remarked Holmes. (p. 118 Chapter 7, Part 1)
42. s he would change his name(p. 131, Chapter 7, Part 1)
43. n observer would have found it difficult to say whether he was nearer to forty or to sixty. (p. 140, Chapter I, Part 2)
44. "What would ye think of offering up prayer?" the man asked diffidently. (p. 146, Chapter I, Part 2)
45. In more fertile spots the observer would have come to the conclusion that one of those great herds of bisons..... (p. 148, Chapter I, Part 2)
46. "whoever would have thought that Poncho would have been so scared by a lot of cows?" (p. 168, Chapter II, Part 2)
47. "Neither would I," said her companion. (p. 169, Chapter II, Part 2)
48. it would make much matter to you, anyhow. (p. 169, Chapter II, Part 2)
49. He swore in his heart that he would not fail in this if human effort and human perseverance could render him successful. (p. 170, Chapter II, Part 2)
50. that nothing would ever induce him to allow his daughter to wed a Mormon. (p. 174, Chapter III, Part 2)
51. might be one of those who would come forth at night with fire and sword to exact a terrible reparation. (p. 177 Chapter III, Part 2)
52. "It is of that daughter that I would speak to you, (p. 179 Chapter III, Part 2)
53. "There are stories of her which I would fain disbelieve—stories that she is sealed to some Gentile(p. 179 Chapter III, Part 2)
54. The girl is young, and we would not have her wed grey hairs, neither would we deprive her of all choice. (p. 180 Chapter III, Part 2)
55. Stangerson has a son, and Drebber has a son, and either of them would gladly welcome your daughter to their house. (p. 180 Chapter III, Part 2)

56. "Then I will start the smiting," exclaimed Ferrier furiously, and would have rushed upstairs for his gun had not Lucy seized him by the arm and restrained him. (p. 188, Chapter IV, Part 2)
57. "I would sooner see you in your grave, my girl, than the wife of either of them." (p. 189 Chapter IV, Part 2)
58. If minor errors were punished so sternly, what would be the fate of this arch rebel. (p. 189 Chapter IV, Part 2)
59. Ferrier knew that his wealth and position would be of no avail to him. (p. 189 Chapter IV, Part 2)
60. He expected that he would receive some message or remonstrance from Young as to his conduct, (p. 190 Chapter IV, Part 2)
61. Turn which way he would, there appeared to be no avoiding the blow which hung over him. (p. 193 Chapter IV, Part 2)
62. and the next day would be the last of the allotted time. (p. 193 Chapter IV, Part 2)
63. John Ferrier felt that instant death would be better than the suspense which shook his nerves and chilled his heart. (p. 194 Chapter IV, Part 2)
64. "There are not many who would come to share our danger and our troubles." (p. 196, Chapter IV, Part 2)
65. I would dog them and follow them until I saw my opportunity. I was determined that they should not escape me again. (p. 233, Chapter VI, Part 2)
66. Go where they would about London, I was always at their heels. (p. 233, Chapter VI, Part 2)
67. I heard them ask for the Liverpool train, and the guard answer that one had just gone and there would not be another for some hours. (p. 235, Chapter VI, Part 2)
68. Drebber said that he had a little business of his own to do, and that if the other would wait for him he would soon rejoin him. (p. 235, Chapter VI, Part 2)
69. On that the Secretary gave it up as a bad job, and simply bargained with him that if he missed the last train he should rejoin him at Halliday's Private Hotel; to which Drebber answered that he would be back on the platform before eleven, and made his way out of the station. (p. 236, Chapter VI, Part 2)
70. If any of you gentlemen have ever pined for a thing, and longed for it during twenty long years, and then suddenly found it within your reach, you would understand my feelings. (p. 241, Chapter VI, Part 2)
71. The pulses in my temples beat like sledge-hammers, and I believe I would have had a fit of some sort if the blood had not gushed from my nose and relieved me. (p. 243, Chapter VI, Part 2)
72. I guessed that what puzzled the New Yorkers would puzzle the Londoners, so I dipped my finger in my own blood and printed it on a convenient place on the wall. (p. 245, Chapter VI, Part 2)

73. By the method of exclusion, I had arrived at this result, for no other hypothesis would meet the facts(p. 256, Chapter VII, Part 2)
74. A higher Judge had taken the matter in hand, and Jefferson Hope had been summoned before a tribunal where strict justice would be meted out to him. (p. 251, Chapter VII, Part 2)
75. "I would not have missed the investigation for anything. (p. 252, Chapter VII, Part 2)
76. "I hardly expected that you would. (p. 253, Chapter VII, Part 2)
77. Most people, if you describe a train of events to them, will tell you what the result would be. (p. 253, Chapter VII, Part 2)
78. There are few people, however, who, if you told them a result, would be able to evolve from their own inner consciousness what the steps were which led up to that result(p. 253, Chapter VII, Part 2)
79. The marks in the road showed me that the horse had wandered on in a way which would have been impossible had there been anyone in charge of it. (p. 259, Chapter VII, Part 2)
80. On the contrary, from his point of view, any sudden chance would be likely to draw attention to himself. (p. 258, Chapter VII, Part 2)
81. He would, probably, for a time at least, continue to perform his duties. (p. 258, Chapter VII, Part 2)
82. "... to do him justice, I think that he would take it himself with the same readiness..." (p. 11, Chapter 1, Part 1)
83. "you say that we go round the sun. If we went round the moon it would not make a pennyworth of difference to me or to my work." (p. 27, Chapter 2, Part 1)
84. If my view of the case is correct, and I have every reason to believe that it is, this man would rather risk anything than lose the ring. (p. 85 Chapter 5, Part 1)
85. This murder would have been infinitely more difficult(p. 128 Chapter 7, Part 1)
86. Had the wanderer remained awake for another half hour a strange sight would have met his eyes. (p. 148, Chapter I, Part 2)
87. It was all that the girl could do to keep herself in the saddle, yet a slip would mean a terrible death under the hoofs of the unwieldy and terrified animals. (p. 167, Chapter II, Part 2)
88. ... with a speed that would whip electro-telegraphs." (p. 183 Chapter III, Part 2)
89. As he stood by the desolate fire, he felt that the only one thing which could assuage his grief would be thorough and complete retribution, brought by his own hand upon his enemies. (p. 214 Chapter V, Part 2)
90. The walls of his chest seemed to thrill and quiver as a frail building would do inside when some powerful engine was at work. (p. 229, Chapter VI, Part 2)
91. It would be quite as deadly, and a good deal less noisy than firing across a handkerchief. (p. 240, Chapter VI, Part 2)

92. Again, it is absurd to suppose that any sane man would carry out a deliberate crime under the very eyes, as it were, of a third person, who was sure to betray him. Lastly, supposing one man wished to dog another through London, what better means could he adopt than to turn cabdriver. (p. 258, Chapter VII, Part 2)

b. Conventional Implicatures “MUST”

1. That I soon realized that I must either leave the metropolis and rusticate somewhere in the country (p. 6, Chapter 1, Part 1)
2. Or that I must make a complete alteration in my style of living. (p. 6, Chapter 1, Part 1)
3. You proposed this arrangement so you must not hold me responsible (p. 11, Chapter 1, Part 1)
4. You must not think I am sulky when I do that. Just let me alone, and I will soon be right
5. "You must study him, then," Stamford said, as he bade me good-bye. "You'll find him a knotty problem, though. I will wager he learns more about you than you about him. Good-bye. (p. 20, Chapter 1, Part 1)
6. We must hurry up, for I want to go to Halle's concert to hear Norman Neruda this afternoon." (p. 72, Chapter 4, Part 1)
7. He must have left it behind," muttered my companion. (p. 78, Chapter 4, Part 1)
8. I must thank you for it all. (p. 79, Chapter 4, Part 1)
9. Still I recognised that justice must be done, and that the depravity of the victim was no condonment in the eyes of the law. (p. 81, Chapter 5, Part 1)
10. "One's ideas must be as broad as Nature if they are to interpret Nature," he answered. (p. 83, Chapter 5, Part 1)
11. On thinking the matter over, it must have occurred to him that it was possible that he had lost the ring in the road after leaving the house. (p. 86 Chapter 5, Part 1)
12. I will follow her," he said, hurriedly; "she must be an accomplice, and will lead me to him. (p. 91 Chapter 5, Part 1)
13. We were the old women to be so taken in. It must have been a young man, and an active one, too, besides being an incomparable actor. (p. 95 Chapter 5, Part 1)
14. "In future you shall send up Wiggins alone to report, and the rest of you must wait in the street. Have you found it, Wiggins?" (p. 100 Chapter 6, Part 1)
15. The cause of death was a deep stab in the left side, which must have penetrated the heart. (p. 119 Chapter 7, Part 1)
16. He must have stayed in the room some little time after the murder (p. 121 Chapter 7, Part 1)
17. You must come before him. (p. 155, Chapter I, Part 2)

18. He must take us as he finds us." (p. 168, Chapter II, Part 2)
19. You must have observed the way in which he held his head and swung his cane. A steady, respectable, middle-aged man, too, on the face of him—all facts which led me to believe that he had been a sergeant." (p. 43, Chapter 3, Part 1)
20. Now, up to last night, we have had no rain for a week, so that those wheels which left such a deep impression must have been there during the night. (p. 66, Chapter 4, Part 1)
21. Since the cab was there after the rain began, and was not there at any time during the morning—I have Gregson's word for that—it follows that it must have been there during the night, and, therefore, that it brought those two individuals to the house." (p. 67, Chapter 4, Part 1)
22. You must come and see us. (p. 169, Chapter II, Part 2)
23. Now I must push along, or father will not trust me with his business any more. (p. 169, Chapter II, Part 2)
24. We must push for Carson City through the mountains. (p. 197 Chapter IV, Part 2)
25. We must make our start at once," said Jefferson Hope, (p. 198 Chapter IV, Part 2)
26. They must, he reflected, be awaiting him anxiously, for he had been absent nearly five hours. (p. 210 Chapter V, Part 2)
27. Jefferson Hope had almost persuaded himself that they must have done so, when his eye fell upon an object which made every nerve of his body tingle within him. (p. 212 Chapter V, Part 2)
28. "You must know something of this matter, Cowper. (p. 216 Chapter V, Part 2)
29. "in the mean time, Mr Jefferson Hope, have you anything that you wish to say? I must warn you that your words will be taken down, and may be used against you." (p. 228, Chapter VI, Part 2)
30. When I got to London my pocket was about empty, and I found that I must turn my hand to something for my living. (p. 232, Chapter VI, Part 2)
31. They must have thought that there was some chance of their being followed, for they would never go out alone, and never after nightfall. (p. 234, Chapter VI, Part 2)
32. Drebber answered that the matter was a delicate one, and that he must go alone. (p. 235, Chapter VI, Part 2)
33. I remembered a German being found in New York with RACHE written up above him, and it was argued at the time in the newspapers that the secret societies must have done it. (p. 245, Chapter VI, Part 2)
34. "Now, gentlemen," the Inspector remarked gravely, "the forms of the law must be complied with. (p. 249, Chapter VI, Part 2)
35. It must have been a private wrong, and not a political one, which called for such a methodical revenge. (p. 257, Chapter VII, Part 2)

CURRICULUM VITAE

1. Full Name : Munadia
2. Date of Birth : Kuala Kapuas, 9th January 1994
3. Marital Status : Single
4. Address : Jl. Pemuda no 21 RT 008 Kel. Selat Dalam Kec.
Selat km 0,5 Kuala Kapuas, Kalimantan Tengah.
5. Education : a. MIN Selat Unit II Kuala Kapuas 2005
b. MTsN Selat Kuala Kapuas 2008
c. MAN Selat Tengah Kuala Kapuas 2011
d. S1 English Department Tarbiyah and Teachers Training
Faculty IAIN Antasari Banjarmasin
6. Organization : a. Racana Pangeran Antasari-Dewi Saranti Gerakan
Pramuka Gugus Depan Banjarmasin 03.167-03.168
Pangkalan IAIN Antasari
b. KMPD Kalimantan Selatan
c. KNPI Kota Banjarmasin
7. Family
 - a. Father's Name : H. Asmuni, BA
 - b. Occupation : Retired Civil Servant
 - c. Mother's name : Hj. Mardiah
 - d. Occupation : Housewife
 - e. Siblings : Asma, S.Pd
Widat Wardati, S.Pd
Ahmad Syibli
8. Contact Number : 0513-23470
085753757596