What is a name?!

Your name is one important part of your identity. You introduce yourself to others by telling your name, and everyone knows you by your name. Even when you think of yourself, you might think of your name first. And in Islam, parents are encouraged to give their children good names. One glorious tradition among Muslims is naming children after Prophet Muhammad with certain expectation that their children will have some noble characters as Profet Muhammad had.

Parents name their children in so many ways. Many people name their children after a family member, after an ancestor, or after famous people like Yesser Arafat and Saddam Hussein, etc. In several places, asking a kiyai about particular good names for children is also one tradition in naming children in Indonesia. A father usually comes to a kiyai and requests a suitable good name for his child.

Nowadays, with the increase of population in the world, many websites and books provide good name for children so that parents can pick one for naming their children. Besides, some parents, are so anxious to give a unique and different name for their child that they search it in other languages, and it's quite common for a child having a name which taken from two diffrent languages. Like Fakhri Alvaro, “Fakhri” is from Arabic language means “pride” and “Alvaro” is from Spanish means “wise” or muhammad Affif Budiman. Muhammad is taken from Prophet Muhammad name, Afif from Arabic language means “virtuous”, and Budiman from Sanskrit mean “righteous”.

What a lovely Friendship

Do you like making friends? Should we have same hobbies to make friend? I don't think so. I have so many friends but there are only three friends who are very special to me. I love them much. They are Galuh, Anis and Husna. We all have different hobbies and interests but we always get along with each other. Whenever one has problems, we will always be there for her.

Galuh is good at writing. She loves writing stories and sends them to a publisher in our city. She also likes learning a lot from many famous Writers. She wants everything she writes can affect people positively.

The funny one is Anis. She is very cheerful and humorous. She likes entertaining us with the way she acts. Everybody will always feel happy to be with her. There is no specific hobby she likes. "I like everything", that's what she said to me.

What about Husna? This serious girl is very talented for painting. It is really her passion. She is crazy about it since she was only a little girl. She enjoys spending her free time to do this activity. She also often displays her paintings on many exhibitions. A lot of people praise her paintings and buy them with a fantastic price.

And me? I am more into sports. I love playing basketball, swimming, and taekwondo. I am the captain of our school basketball team and go to a lot of competitions. Galuh, Anis, and Husna often watch my games and give me supports. When our team wins the competition, we celebrate it together by eating out at our favorite restaurant. Although we have different hobbies, we have something in common: our love for good food. I am happy to have friends like them.

Famous Markets Around The World

Nowadays people can shop by telephone, by post or by internet; but for many people, the most exciting way to shop is going to the traditional street market. You can find markets everywhere in the world. Here are some unique markets:

The Grand Bazaar in Istanbul Turkey is more than 500 years old and it has more than four thousand shops under one roof! You can buy almost anything, but the most popular item for tourists are the beautiful rugs and carpets.

Campo dei Fiori in the oldest part of Rome, Italy, is the most beautiful square (or 'Piazza') in the world. It is the home of a colourful flower, fruit and vegetable market, open from seven o'clock in the morning to midday except Sunday, in the evening the piazza becomes a lively place to meet friends and to have a meal.

The most unusual market is in Mexico City: at the Sonora Market. As well as toys and brids, you can buy herbs and natural medicine, which (they say) can help with anything – from problems that work to problems with marriage. It is open everyday from early morning till late at night.

In Thailand there is a famous floating market called Damnoen Saduak, 100 km from Bangkok. From six in the morning to midday, every day people sell fresh tropical fruits and vegetables from their boat.

In Banjarmasin, Indonesia the floating market is called Pasar Terapung. The famous one is located in Barito River, Banjarmasin. If you want to go there, you must take a 'kelotok' (small motor boat) which is open every day but mostly visitors go to floating market on Sunday or Public holidays.

Another unique market in Banjarmasin is Pasar Wadai. It is a cake market during Ramadhan or fasting month. You can buy various traditional cakes and meals there. It is open from around 3 in the afternoon until 7 in the evening. For some people , Pasar Wadai is not only a place to buy food but also a place to hang out before the time for breaking the fast comes.

Anton's Daily Routine

Anton works at a bank in Melbourne. Anton's daily routine is a little boring but he likes it. He usually gets up at about 5 or 5.30 in the morning, after his alarm clock wake him up. First, he brushes, his teeth, shaves and take a shower. Then he gets dressed and prays. After he checks some e-mails in his computer, he go downstairs to has breakfast with his family. He always has coffee, cereal and lots of fruits. He takes a tram to work because he doesn't like to drive, and he always arrives at his office around 8. He is never late for work.

Five o'clock is his favorite time of the day because the finish work and hurry back home and see his wife and children again. He has two boys, Fatih, six years old , and Royan, eight years old. He loves to hang out with his kids. They eat dinner together in their dining room after they pray maghrib. He spends the rest of the evening with his family by watching their favorite Tv programs of playing games. Two or three times a week, Anton goes to the gym and does exercise in the evening, so he can stay strong and healthy. He thinks that this is very important. Finally at about 9.30, he goes to the bad, read for a while, and then fall asleep. Some people think his daily routine is little boring. But on weekends and holidays he does various activities such as playing football, bicycling, meeting up with some friends, or going to Sunday market.
