

CHAPTER V

CLOSURE

A. Conclusion

According to the explanations above, there some important points the researcher found in the research that had been conducted:

1. There were some benefits for English teachers in teaching English using Independent Curriculum. First, teaching english with independent learning curriculum was easier. Second, teachers understand more about the students' learning styles. Next, students' learning interest, scores and characteristic were increasing. The last, students and teachers had good communication. Meanwhile, there were also benefits from the students' point of view based on the interview. First, the students understand the material easier. Second, the students felt more intrested in learning english.
2. There were some challenges teachers should face when using Independent Learning Curriculum. First, Teacher felt difficult to determine teaching techniques for the students. Second, teacher felt difficult to know all of the students' characteristics. Last, teacher felt difficult in choosing essensial material for each class.

B. Suggestion

1. For English teachers, the researcher hope this research give positive effect to the education field and contribute more knowledge about Independent Learning Curriculum in English subject. Researcher hopes this research help teacher who prepare themselves to use the new curriculum. Hopefully teachers gain the benefits and detect the challenges. The benefits to motivate them using Independent Learning Curriculum, while challenges to make them well-prepared before using Independent Learning Curriculum
2. For English Education Department, researcher hopes this research can be useful for teaching development and can be literature review.
3. For future researchers. Hopefully this research can be good reference for the researchers who want to conduct research related to this topic.