Interview Guidelines

- Name of Teacher : Ahsaniah S. Pd
- Objective : To find out the most appropriate strategies and difficulties in teaching and learning speaking when using project-based learning in English class.
1. What difficulties do you face when teaching English using project-based learning activities in class?
Answer learned, : Choosing the best topic to cover the material that needs to be managing time for a project plan, managing and guiding every student in the classroom, dealing with students' varying abilities, and dealing with disruptive students are just a few of the challenges that arise during preparation.
 2. What do you feel when teaching English using project-based learning? Explain it?
Answer happy. : The students' ability to express their ideas and creativity makes me happy.
 3. Have you ever encountered any difficulties while preparing lessons, such as choosing topics or project-based material in your English class?
Answer project to : Yes, there are instances when teachers struggle to decide which assign and what subject to cover. It is resolved by sharing with other educators and occasionally having a conversation with the students.
 4. Have you ever encountered difficulties in assessing student project results? And does PjBL affect student academic achievement?
Answer reason : I have never had any trouble grading student projects thus far. The behind the students' good performance is their enthusiasm and effort put into the project.
 5. When students were asked to make this project-based assignment, did you find it difficult? If yes, how did you overcome that difficulty?
Answer enough : Indeed, teachers occasionally encountered difficulties in allocating time to complete all of the project's materials. Teachers must therefore plan ahead and manage their time well in order to cover everything. However, the students typically complete the assignment well, and how to solve it? The teachers ask the students to make the project based on their own ideas and creativity. Students often doing individual project especially during home-based learning then they present it individually.
