

CHAPTER IV

FINDINGS AND DISCUSSION

A. Findings

This research was conducted by searching the data on Twitter. After selecting and classifying the data by screenshots the tweets, the researcher selected 50 tweets that has grammatical errors in it. The findings of this study are presented and discussed regarding the theory of grammatical errors by Dulay, Burt and Krashen (1982) it is called Surface Structure Taxonomy. The classifications will be presented below:

1. Omission Errors

The researcher found that omission is the most type of errors that occurred in this study. It usually happens because the items that needed in a sentence is ommitted. There are two types of omission such as ontent morphemes and grammatical morphemes. The details will be presented in Table 1 below.

Table 4. 1 Omission Errors

As the table 1 above, there are 41 omission errors found from 50 tweets that researcher selected. After the researcher classifying it between two types of omission errors, and the researcher found that the grammatical morphemes frequently occur in K-Pop stan's tweets. the findings of grammatical errors above will be explained as follows:

a. Omission of auxiliary verb (to be, is, are will, etc.)

1). There are 14 tweets that missed an auxiliary verb, it is omission of an auxiliary verb "is" One example in the sentence that written by K-Pop stan tweet on twitter, "Everyone waiting for this moment." it was not correct because there was the omission of auxiliary verb in the form to be in present participle and the subject is singular noun. The correct sentence is, "Everyone is waiting for this moment."

2). In the data number 8 there is omission of auxiliary verb "will" in the form of future tense because there is word tomorrow in it. The sentence, "Jungkook solo album release tomorrow! I'm so excited" was incorrect. It should be "Jungkook's solo album will release tomorrow! I'm so excited!"

3). There are 4 tweets that found in the sentences are missing auxiliary verb "are" One example in the tweet above, "I am so excited my Jungkook you gonna do amazing on your solo debut stage" It was incorrect because there was omission of auxiliary verb in the form of to be (are) with plural subject. It should be "I am so excited my Jungkook you are gonna do amazing on your solo debut stage."

b. Omission of apostrophe

There are 11 tweets that missing the omission of apostrophe and “s” that shows possession in the form of thing belongs to someone or something. One example in the tweet above, “Jungkook official solo debut in 15 minutes” It was not correct because it showed there was the omission of apostrophe (‘) and apostrophe with (s) in the sentence. The sentence should be “Jungkook’s official solo debut in 15 minutes.”

c. Omission of inflection -s to the verb in simple present tense.

There are 5 tweets that showed omission of inflection “-s” to the verb in simple present tense. The subject in the sentences above are singular. For example, “What more when he release his solo album.” The sentence was not correct because the verb release should be added with an inflection of -s in the last word because the verb is in the form of simple present tense. The correct sentence should be “What more when he releases his solo album.”

d. Omission of a verb (to be) in nominal sentence.

There are 7 tweets that found about omission of verb in nominal sentences that they tweeted. For example, the sentence “Seven by jungkook out today.” was incorrect because in the well form of nominal sentence there should be an appropriate verb be to complete the sentence. The correct one is, “Seven by jungkook is out today.”

e. Omission of inflection -ing to indicate gerund and inflection -ed in passive voice.

In the data number 13 and 26 showed about the omission of inflection -ing in the sentences. For example, the sentence “We get to see him explore his full potential through his solo era.” was incorrect because there is no inflection -ing in the explore word to show that it is a gerund as an object in the sentence. the word explore should be changed into exploring. The correct sentence is “We get to see him exploring his full potential through his solo era.”

In the data number 32 showed there was omission of inflection -ed in the sentence. the sentence “The live show will be cancel.” it was incorrect because there is no inflection -ed to the word cancel to indicate that it is a past participle verb in passive voice sentence. the word cancel is needed to be changed to cancelled so the correct sentence should be “The live show will be cancelled.”

f. Omission of article (a, an, the, etc.)

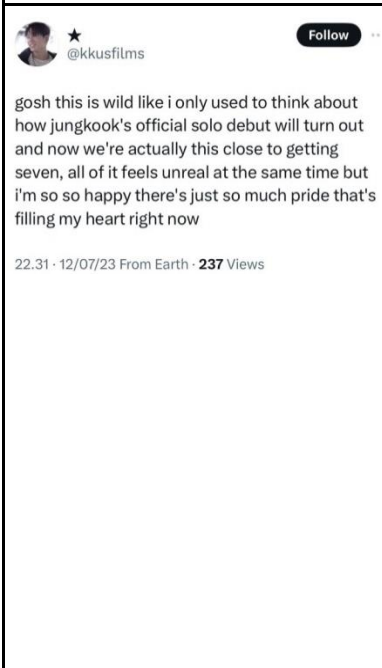

There are 6 tweets that found the omission of an article (a, an, the etc). For example, in the sentence “Even tho I feel like total crap.” The sentence is not correct because it does not have an article. It is needed an article a in it. The correct sentence should be “Even tho I feel like a total crap.”

2. Addition Errors

Based on the data of this research, researcher found that addition errors is one of the most errors that appeared in the data of this research. It existed because the presence of an item that must not occur in a well-formed sentence. addition error has 3 different types namely, double markings, regularization, and simple addition. there are 9 out of 50 tweets cases are selected as addition errors.

The more explanation of the data will be explained in table 2 below.

Based on the data results above, the researcher found that simple additions of addition error were most dominant errors uttered by K-Pop stan's tweets on Twitter and there was one tweet that identified as double marking of addition errors.

a. Simple Additions

Based on the findings of this research, addition error of simple additions is the most error that occur in the sentences. For instance, "Okay, back to celebrating Jungkook & his amazing solo debut" that sentence was not correct because it contains unnecessary inflection -ing which should be omitted to make a correct sentence. The sentence can be revised to "Okay, back to celebrate Jungkook & his amazing solo debut."

b. Double Markings

Double marking showed in the data number 7 in the findings above, the sentence "Jungkook making us laugh with his debut solo MV is actually really wholesome." Was incorrect because there is addition of an adverb word "actually" which should not be needed in the complete sentence because the adverb “really” is enough to make a complete sentence. it should be “Jungkook making us laugh with his debut solo MV is really wholesome.”

3. Misformation

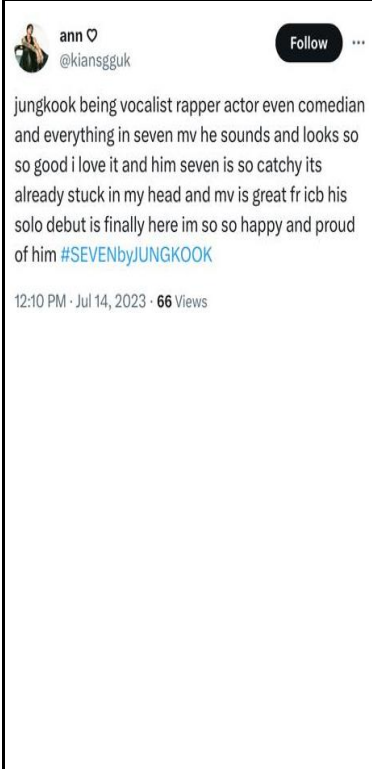

From the data findings, researcher found 9 out of 50 tweets are selected as misformation errors and this is the same with addition errors that occurred in this research. Misformation errors are grammatical error which are caused by using the wrong form of the structure or morphemes in a sentence. there are 3 types of misformation such as regularization, archi-forms, and alternating-forms. The researcher explained the misformation detail in table 3 below:

 06.54 · 16/07/23 From Earth · 5 Views	Alternating-forms	Get ready to blow away! Jungkook, the sensational member of BTS, is about to make his solo debut in the US. Brace yourselves for an unforgettable performance of SEVEN at the 2023

		Summer Concert Series.
	Archi-forms	The fact that there are barely any good dedicated accs who are motivating us to go harder for Jungkook except ard_updates.
	Archi-forms	I feel so proud oh my gosh I never felt this kind of proud I have as a jk bias this is new, my Jungkook's solo debut is really here.
	Alternating-forms Archi-forms	Never thought it is actually Jungkook who will have a leading lady in a music video for his solo debut. Dude has always been on the side that people assume that he does not like girls, those bunches of youtube compilations of jk being afraid to girls should put on a shame rn.

	Archi-forms	Jungkook is being vocalist rapper actor even comedian and everything in seven MV he sounds and looks so good I love it and his seven is so catchy it's already stuck in my head and the MV is great fr icb his solo debut is finally here I'm so happy and proud of him.
	Alternating-forms	Let's not forget that Jungkook said that this is just the beginning of his solo debut. He is releasing a single and it is already breaking records and making history what more when he releases his solo album? A whole freaking album might end us all.

Based on the data findings in table 4, there are 9 misinformation errors that found in 50 tweets of K-Pop stan on Twitter. After the researcher arranging the errors, it showed that archi-forms and alternatingforms has the same data frequently appeared in the tweets by K-pop stan on Twitter. the data of grammatical errors above will be explained as follows:

a. Archi-forms

There are 5 tweets that are classified as archi-forms error. For example, the tweet from data number 5, “Is that mean he is going to support Jungkook for his first solo performance?” Was incorrect because the use of word is is the wrong form and grammatically incorrect because the word mean is a verb, and it must be followed by does. It should be replaced with the word does so the correct sentence is “Does that mean he is going to support Jungkook for his first solo performance?”

b. Alternating-forms

In table 3 above, 5 tweets are selected as the error of alternating-forms. For instance, the sentence “Get ready to blown away!” was not correct because the word blown should be changed to blow as the word before it was to that should be followed by verb 1 as to infinitive. The correct sentence is, “Get ready to blow away.”

4. Misordering

From the data findings, misordering came to the last position appeared in this research. Misordering errors are grammatical error which is caused by placing the wrong items of certain morphemes in a well sentence. The researcher just found 1 out of 50 tweets was selected as misordering.

The researcher explained the misordering error detail in table 4 below:

Table 4. 4 Misordering Errors

K-Pop’s tweets	Misordering	Corecctions
	Misordering Error	Since I became a fan of BTS and Jungkook is my bias, I’ve been waiting so long for Jungkook’s solo debut since that year, 2016. Now that it is happening, I’m loving for this shining moment of Jungkook. The song is so good and those achievements are understandable. I’m so proud of you Jungkook.

From the data findings, misordering rarely occur in K-Pop stan’s tweets on Twitter. that one tweet above has misplaced error. Misordering error occurred in the sentence “I’m loving for this moment of Jungkook shining” Was incorrect because the word shining is adjective and the place in a well-formed sentence should be placed after noun “moment” The correct sentence is, “I’m loving for this shining moment of Jungkook.”

B. Discussion

Based on the data findings, the researcher chose tweets that written by K-Pop stan on Twitter as the main instrument. The data were analyzed based on the Surface Strategy Taxonomy, which is the theory of Dulay, Burt, and Krashen (1982) and they examined the error into four types namely, omission, addition, misordering and misformation. While selecting the data, the researcher had discovered the tweets which were posted on 12th July to 16th July, 2023 and after reading the tweets appeared based on the date and the topic one by one the researcher selected 50 tweets and the researcher also found that in one tweet was not only consist of one type of grammatical error, but it could be found more than one type of grammatical error.

The results of this research showed that omission error became the most grammatical error type that made by K-Pop stan on Twitter with 41 tweets error. It could happen because the users were omitting items or morphemes which should be used to complete a well-formed sentence. omission error has two types such as omission of content morphemes and omission of grammatical morphemes. After classifying it one by one, the researcher found that the omission of grammatical morphemes was the most type of error that occurred in this study. There were 40 tweets omission of grammatical morphemes and the most mistake they made was omitting the auxiliary verb “is”. It was omission in the form of verb auxiliary in present participle and the subject is singular noun.

There were 9 tweets of addition errors that researcher found in this research. Addition error was caused by adding items that should not be needed or appear in a well-formed sentence. there are three types of addition error such as double markings, regularization, and simple addition. it could be shown based on the data findings above, the most type that researcher found in this study was simple addition error. Simple addition was indicated by the used of an item which must not occur in a well-formed utterance.

Researcher found 9 out of 50 tweets that were selected as misformation error. According to (Dulay et. al., 1982, pp. 158) misformation was caused by using the wrong form or structure of the morpheme in a sentence. misformation has three types of error, namely: regularization, archi-forms, and alternating-forms. In this research, the archi-forms and alternating-forms were found as the grammatical error written by K-Pop stan on twitter. archi-forms error is a mistake that made because they are selecting the member of class forms to represent others. Meanwhile alternating-forms was caused by the error in using the right form of the word. It happened because the development of their grammar and vocabulary.

Misordering was the last type of error that researcher found in this study with only 1 out of 50 tweets that selected. (Sa’adiyah, et al., 2022, p. 55) stated misordering is an error which caused by the learners placing the wrong morpheme or group of the sentence formulation in an utterance. In this study, it can be shown that K-Pop stan on Twitter understand about the placement of items in a sentence because out of 50 tweets, the researcher only found 1 tweet that has misordering error in it which is the incorrect placement of the subject.

Based on the analysis findings above, the researcher aims to answer the research question formulated. The highest common error made by K-Pop stan on Twitter was omission error in grammatical morphemes principally in omission of auxiliary verb, the grammatical error that frequently occur was addition error especially in simple addition, the third type was misformation and the last error was misordering.
