

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

The purposes of this research are to know the techniques that used in teaching pronunciation and how to apply them at the second semester students of English department, and to know the students' response toward lecturer's techniques in teaching process. After conducting the research and analyzing all the data, the researcher would like to conclude the results of the study as follows:

1. The techniques that applied by lecturer in teaching pronunciation are drilling, chaining, giving feedback, and taping students' English.
2. The application of those techniques is good. Even the lecturer develop the technique but the application is appropriate with the theory. Also, the techniques that the lecturer applied is suitable for the students. The students can learn pronunciation effectively.
3. The students' responses toward lecture's techniques is categorized good, it can be seen from their responses 78% students said yes and most of the students happy with the techniques used by the lecturer in teaching pronunciation.

B. Suggestion

Having done the research, the writer gives some suggestions as follow:

1. For English Department, it is expected that the department can provide good facilities in teaching and learning process, and the department can give more training or literary for the new lecturer before they are going to teach in real class. The training or literary is not only about knowledge of the lesson, but also about the theory and practice of technique of language teaching.
2. For English lecturers especially pronunciation lecturers, it is expected that they can improve their skill in teaching, the skill about managing class and improve knowledge about techniques of pronunciation teaching.
3. For the next researcher, it is expected that this research can give basic information for other researchers who want to do the same research in more enriched one and able to be reference about the picture of language learning strategy.
