

CHAPTER V

CLOSURE

A. Conclusion

Based on the analysis in the previous chapter, it can be concluded that the seventh semester students of English Department at UIN Antasari Academic Year 2017/2018 had 143 grammatical errors.

Related to the statement of problem, the writer can concluded that:

1. The type of error that students made were error of sentence patterns, tense, noun, and pronoun. From the result of tabulation of error, sentence patterns were 49 with percentage 34.27 %, errors of tense is 29 errors under the percentage 20.28%, errors of noun is 43 errors with percentage 30.07%, errors of pronoun is 22 errors with percentage 15.38%.
2. The most common error made by seventh semester students of English Department is sentence pattern with percentage 34.27%, and error in pronoun is the least frequent error made by the student with percentage 15.38%.

B. Suggestion

Based on the result of the research, the writer would like to give some suggestions as follows:

1. The lecturer should pay more attention to the students difficulties in grammar usage related to writing

2. The students should pay more attention to English grammar to writing as well and learn more from their errors.
3. To other researcher, since this study is far from being perfect, it is expected thn the other researcher can discuss and analyzed the learner error deeply